2 take up GOP standard; Ford, Carter vow debates

by HERALD News Services

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — President Ford promised victory to wildly cheering Republicans Thursday night and said he would campaign against the Democrats in every part of the nation on a record that has won an "incredible comeback" for America.

Ford, his vice presidential choice, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, nominated without real opposition, urged Republicans to unite in the uphill battle to keep Jimmy Carter out of the White House.

Ronald Reagan strode to Gerald Ford's side at the podium of a roaring Republican convention Thursday and told the Republicans to "go forth from here in unityl" The crowd went wild.

It was a magic moment for the convention and for Reagan, who was cheered until his eyes brimmed with tears when he entered the hall. Summoned to share the podium limelight by Ford, he spoke as if snatching phrases from the nomination acceptance speech he never got to deliver.

At the last minute — and against the advice of some strategists — Ford inserted into his acceptance speech a challenge to Carter for head-to-head debates in the fall.

From his home in Plains, Ga. — even as Ford was addressing the convention — Carter accepted the challenge for the first presidential debates since 1960 when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met in four television appearances which helped Kennedy win the presidency.

"This year the issues are on our side," Ford told the closing session of the convention in launching his campaign for a White House term of his own. "I'm ready, eager, to go before the American people and debate the real issues face-to-face with Mr. Carter."

Just before Ford and his wife Betty arrived at the podium high above the jammed convention floor, the delegates at the 31st National Convention chose Sen. Dole of Kansas as the vice presidential nominee.

"We want Ford, We want Ford!" the delegates shouted as the Fords, hands clenched above their heads, acknowledged the ovation culminating the closest battle for a presidential nomination in a quarter-century.

And the closeness of his arduous, six-month struggle against Ronald Reagan was underlined by the frenzied last hurrah accorded the former California governor when he and his wife Nancy entered the sweltering arena.

The Geagan demonstration matched in fervor and in length the accolade given Ford.

Reaganites shouted "speech, speech, speech!" as their favorite stood waving and smiling — his eyes glistening — from a special section reserved for dignitaries. He waved for quiet. They ignored him.

Trying to quell the demonstration, Reagan, at one point, agreed to address the final session of the convention. But as outburst, slowly, grudgingly faded into near silence, Reagan changed his mind to leave the limelight for Ford.

It was a dramatic reminder of Reagan's popularity; it was in honor of a gallant campaign. After Ford finished, he invited the Reagans to the podium to share the crowd's ovations.

And Reagan, given an opportunity to speak, told his fiercely devoted followers they had given him "a memory that will live in our hearts forever."

Standing on the podium, Ford savored the hard-won triumph that kept him from becoming the first incumbent GOP president denied nomination since Chester Arthur in 1884. Wave after wave of applause rolled across the convention floor.

But he acknowledged in his speech that he has been described as an "accidental president," occupying the White House only because first Spiro Agnew, then Richard Nixon resigned

Wendy's carnival is 'to help people live'

Eleven-year-old Wendy Lynne Copeland reached over and placed the small, white envelope in my hand. I flipped it over and read the backside.

In neatly printed letters, the envelope said: "I had my carnival against dystrophy because. . ."

And on the empty lines below, Wendy had written: "My sister died with a disease like muscular dystorphy. I want to help people live."

Shelley Copeland was 16 years old and had just begun her junior year at Hoffman Estates High School when she died in October 1974. An entire neighborhood will remember Shelley today with its nickels and its love.

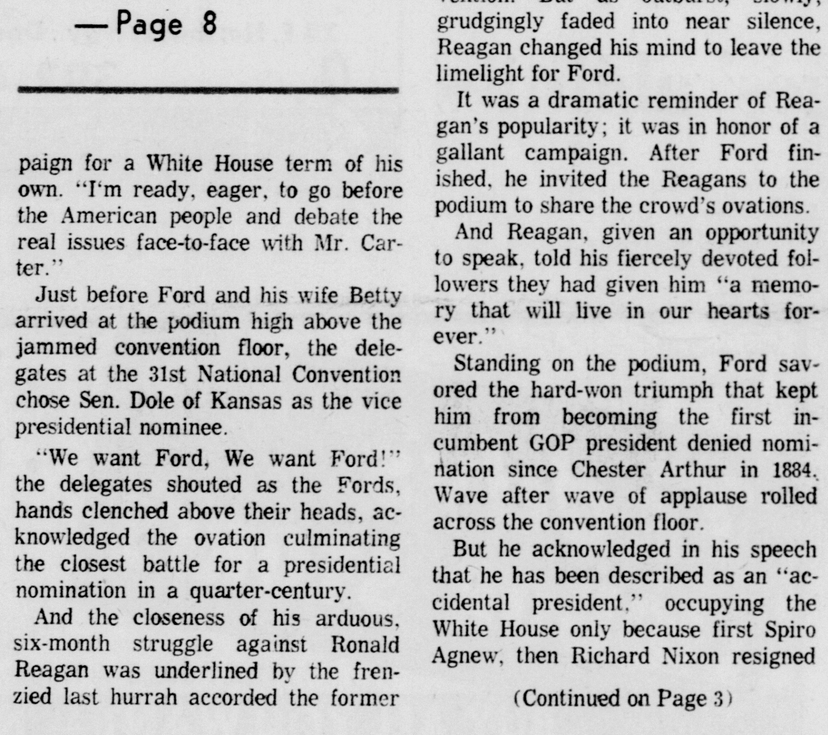

Five cents. That's all the admission will cost to this very special Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy that will be conducted in Shelley's honor.

FESTIVITIES will begin at 1 p.m. at 1034 Tulip Way in the Pinehurst Manor subdivision of Palatine. Those homes are located just northeast of the Rand Road and Dundee Road intersection.

Chevy Chase annex sought for homes

ANNEXATION OF the Chevy Chase Country Club and surrounding land would extend Buffalo Grove more than two miles east. The proposed annexation excludes several isolated parcels within the 646-acre development site. Some of the land already is developed.

by BILL HURLEY

Owners of the Chevy Chase Country Club and surrounding areas east of Buffalo Grove are asking the village to annex the land and permit construction of a townhouse and apartment complex on the golf course.

Owners presented plans for the first time to the plan commission Wednesday for the annexation of approximately 550 acres extending more than two miles east of the village limits. The proposed boundaries would include 646 acres, but annexation of the Chevy Chase subdivision and other isolated parcels is not planned at this time.

Robert Grossman of Associated Planners, Highland Park, prepared a report proposing the entire 646 acre parcel be developed to include 45 acres of single-family homes, 74 acres of apartments and 97 acres of townhouses. This would generate approximately 5,162 new Buffalo Grove residents.

Thirty-four per cent of the site which is already partially developed would be residential, 28 per cent parks and open space, 18 per cent industrial, 10 per cent commercial and 9 per cent ponds, streams, detention areas and flood plain.

BUFFALO GROVE plan commission members were noncommittal after their first look at plans this week, but cited several problems that may arise as barriers to annexation.

One of the major problems is that only about half the land proposed for annexation is designated for annexation on the village master plan, which recommends the village annex only as far east as Milwaukee Avenue and as far south in that area as the Lake-Cook county line.

Grossman said it would be to the Car only clue in mystery of body found in woods

by DANN GIRE

An abandoned car is the only key police have to the identification of an unidentified body found Thursday in Potawatomi Woods near the Dundee Road-Milwaukee Avenue intersection in Wheeling Township.

Police believe the man may have been the owner of an auto recently found in the Cook County Forest Preserve woods by forest preserve rangers. The auto was registered to John Drag, 37, but the address of Drag was not released by police.

The body was discovered at 2:30 p.m. Thursday by John Perdue of 1022 E. Village Ct., Des Plaines, while he was walking through the woods, police said.

U.S. troops put on special alert

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States sent two squadrons of warplanes to South Korea Thursday and put its 42,000 troops there on special alert in angry response to the slaying of two American officers by ax-wielding North Korean guards.

In Seoul, South Korean President Park Chung-hee said Friday any future North Korean acts of provocation would be met with immediate retaliation.

"A mad dog needs a stick," Park said. "There's no reason why we should be unilaterally subject to their provocation."

A New York congressman, Democratic Rep. John M. Murphy, told UPI that Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger had "wanted a higher level of response" involving movement of U.S. or South Korean infantry and armor but the idea was rejected by top-ranking U.S. military officials.

As it was, North Korea called the stepped-up readiness of American forces there "imperialists' maneuvers to start a new war" and said it brought the situation to "an extremely reckless stage, a stage of directly kindling the blasting fuse of war."

The U.S. State Dept. refused to comment on Murphy's report but it said Kissinger had met twice, late Wednesday and again Thursday morning, with the Washington Special Action Group, a high level crisis task force which includes representatives of the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Kissinger also got in touch with ambassador Huang Chen, chief of the Peoples Republic of China liaison office here, and with "a number of governments," a State Dept. spokesman said.

Later Thursday, the Pentagon announced a squadron of F-4 Phantom Jet fighters from Okinawa had arrived in South Korea and a squadron of swing-wing F-111 fighter bombers was on its way from Idaho to beef up the three squadrons of F-4s the United States has there.

There are 18 to 20 aircraft in a squadron.

A Pentagon spokesman said the F-111s were making the transPacific flight non-stop, refueling in the air, and were expected to arrive Friday morning.

THE SPECIAL alert for U.S. ground forces canceled all leaves and passes and put the servicemen on a state of readiness about midway between peacetime and all-out wartime status.

North Korean Pres. Kim Il-Sung ordered his forces "on a war posture," according to a North Korean radio broadcast monitored in Washington.

The U.S. officers were hacked to death and four other American GIs and five South Korean troops were seriously injured in the Panmunjom truce zone Wednesday when they were attacked by about 30 North Korean guards wielding axes and clubs.

Police seek clues to body's identity

An abandoned car is the only clue investigators have in determining the name of an unidentified man whose decomposed body was found Thursday in Potawatomi Woods near the intersection of Dundee Road and Milwaukee in Wheeling Township. The body was discovered at 2:30 p.m. by John Perdue, 1022 E. Village Ct., Des Plaines. Police said Perdue was walking in the woods when he found the body. Police believe the dead man may have been the owner of an abandoned car found recently in the Cook County Forest Preserve. The car was registered to John Drag, 37. Drag's address was unavailable Thursday night. A Cook County Sheriff's police spokesman said identification probably will be made through dental records "because of the deterioration of the body."

Killer of woman, 28, sought

Police are seeking the killer of a 28-year-old woman who recently moved from a relative's home in Elk Grove Village to a Wheaton boarding house where her body was found Wednesday. Police said the nude body of Darlene G. Stack was discovered in her room at 1465 Stoddard St., Wheaton, bound and gagged with a bedsheet and stabbed 35 times in her upper torso. She had moved to Wheaton Sunday from the home of a sister and brother-in-law in Elk Grove Village, with whom she had lived for a month. Police said she apparently was murdered between 3:30 and 10 a.m. Wednesday at the $80,000 split-level home of Grace Pahles, who told police she last saw Miss Stack alive at 11:15 p.m. Tuesday. Miss Stack had attended Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, for four years and began classes Monday at Central DuPage Hospital in Winfield to become a medical laboratory technician.

Meadows water ban ends Sept. 1

A month-long ban on lawn sprinkling in Rolling Meadows will end Sept. 1, John P. Hennessy, city public works superintendent, said Thursday. Hennessy said "the residents of Rolling Meadows have demonstrated responsibility and prudence." On Wednesday Hennessy had criticized neighboring communities. "I consider the needless use of water in surrounding towns irresponsible. I think the City of Rolling Meadows has taken the only responsible attitude in this time of serious concern over our water supply in the Northwest suburbs." He said the attitude of some nearby towns was "that they are in the business to sell water."

Food program sinking for lack of federal aid

by KURT BAER

Operation Nutrition, a food supplement program for pregnant mothers and children in low-income families, apparently will have to shut down because of a lack of funds.

Cutbacks in money from the U.S. Community Services Administration is threateneing to end the nutrition program, Michael Raimondi, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said Thursday.

More than 500 low-income families in the Northwest suburbs participate in Operation Nutrition. The program supplies powdered milk and eggs, canned meat, vegetables and peanut butter, instant potatoes, farina, corn syrup and juice to low-income families where there is a pregnant or postpartem mother, or children under 6 years old.

Food for the program is provided at no cost from the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. But it costs the Opportunity Center about $15,000 a year to distribute the food and pay a worker to run the program.

WITHOUT FUNDS from the Community Services Administration, or some other source, the Opportunity Center cannot afford the program, Raimondi said.

"Right now there's really nothing we can do. We plan to work with the Community and Economic Development Assn. of Cook County, CEDA, to petition the federal government to restore the allocation for Operation Nutrition," Raimondi said.

About 2,300 low-income families throughout suburban Cook County are affected by the discontinuation of the program, he said. CEDA oversees Operation Nutrition in Cook County and distributes the federal dollars to run the program.

Clara Rocha, administrator of Operation Nutrition at the Opportunity Center, said she is more upset that people who need the food will not get it than she is about losing her job.

THE FOOD is distributed once a month at the Opportunity Center, now located at 410 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights; and at the Streamwood fire station.

Raimondi said he plans to call a meeting of all the families in the Northwest suburbs who have relied on Operation Nutrition to explain the reasons for discontinuing food plan. If the Opportunity Center can come up with the approximately $15,000 it needs to administer the program, Operation Nutrition could be resumed, he said.

Charles David Hughes Jr., CEDA's executive director, said Thursday there is still a possibility that funds will be available for Operation Nutrition.

"I would like to feel that the door is still a little open," Hughes said. A meeting is planned with Community Services Administration officials in Chicago to discuss funding for the program.

"At the present time, the Community Services Administration indicates the funds are not available. If the money does not become available, we would have to close down the program, probably around Sept. 15," Hughes said.

Democrat club to review election judges' abilities

Democratic election judges in Schaumburg Township have received letters from the newly formed township Democratic Club saying the club plans to review their qualifications, a duty normally carried out by the township's elected committeeman.

The Schaumburg club, along with clubs in Palatine, Hanover and New Trier townships, have been formd by Democrats loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley to counter regular township party organizations headed by elected committeemen, which are considered too independent of Daley and the Cook Cunty party structure.

The Schaumburg letters, which were received by the judges this week, included tickets to the picnic sponsored by the Northwest suburban clubs.

THE LETTER WAS signed by Frank Franco, identified as the club's "precinct coordinator." In the letter, Franco says he plans to meet with the judges in the future to decide whether they will be retained in their posts.

Schaumburg Township Committeeman John Morrissey, who has been criticized by chief Daley aide Jane Byrne, said he is "amused" by the letter because most election judges already have been certified for the November election. He said, "I regret the fact that there is some implication that their tenure as a judge is somewhat doubtful."

Election judges normally are recommended by their township committeemen and appointed by the chairman of the county party organization, in the case of the Democrats by Daley.

Officials of the Schaumburg club were unavailable for comment on the letters.

THE CLUB PICNIC, which is sponsored by the Palatine, Hanover, Schaumburg clubs and the Elgin Township Regular Democratic organization, is set for 11 a.m. Sunday at Shoe Factory Road Lake Woods Grove.

Among political leaders expected to be at the picnic are Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael Howlett, secretary of state candidate Alan Dixon, and Cook County Sheriff Richard Elrod.

Officials of the clubs had said they hoped Daley would attend the picnic. However, Daley's office said this week that the mayor does not have the picnic scheduled.

Torrential rain, gale force wind pummel Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — A tropical depression drifting erratically off South Florida pummeled Miami Thursday with gale force winds and torrential rains, flooding streets and stores and knocking out power in scattered parts of the city.

Limbs and palm fronds were ripped from trees by the high winds, which at one point began lifting sheets of plywood and lumber off a high-rise project under construction in Downtown Miami.

Dr. Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center, said the depression was kicking up winds of 40 miles an hour. Gusts up to 50 and 60 m.p.h. were reported in squalls in the Florida Keys and the Bahama Islands.

"Winds are near the threshold for a tropical storm," Frank said, "and even though conditions do not favor rapid strengthening, even a small increase in winds would make it a tropical storm and require us to assign it a name."

Frank said the depression, at noon, was centered in Florida Bay just off the south Florida mainland.

"The depression is drifting slowly and erratically," Frank said, "and the heavy rains along the southeast Florida coast may persist for another 12 to 18 hours."

Another disturbance being watched by forecasters, tropical storm Candice, continued to whip the Atlantic north of Bermuda with 65 m.p.h. winds.

At noon, EDT, Candice was centered 400 miles north of Bermuda near latitude 38.4 north and longitude 64.6 west. The storm was moving north-northeast at 10 to 15 m.p.h. and posed no threat to the United States mainland.

The depression, which formed off Key West on Wednesday, dumped as much as six inches of rain on Miami and south Florida during the day and brought rush-hour traffic to a standstill.

"It's a mess," Miami Police spokesman Harry Cunill said, "but there have been no serious accidents. We're monitoring our radios and sending units to flooded streets to reroute traffic."

The heaviest flooding in downtown Miami was in a 15-block area between Biscayne Boulevard and Northeast 13th to 18th streets. The water in some parts of this area was over three feet deep and flowed into several stores.

Dade County police also reported heavy flooding on Key Biscayne, just across the bay fro Miami, where water was so deep in one condominium parking garage that residents were unable to move their cars.

U.S. TROOPS IN South Korea, stand in full combat dress Thursday after the United States issued a special alert of troops, canceled all passes and moved planes into the area.

Physicists announce New components found in atom

NEW YORK (UPI) — The discovery of new components in the nucleus of the atom called "charmed baryons" was announced Thursday by physicists who said the impact of their research might rival the harnessing of electricity.

A team of scientists led by Dr. Wonyong Lee of Columbia University said two years of work confirmed the existence of "charm," a physical property of subatomic matter that explains inconsistencies in the behavior of particles like neutrons, protons and electrons that make up atoms.

The existence of charm had been predicted in theory but never previously confirmed.

The research team composed of physicists from Columbia, the University of Illinois and the University of Hawaii, made their discovery at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Batavia, Ill.

Dr. Bruce Knapp, an assistant professor at Columbia, said, "We can't do anything with high energy physics like this right now but people in Faraday's time didn't understand electricity."

He said, "As long as you didn't fly a kite in a storm, you didn't have to worry about electricity then, but this discovery could become as important in coming years as electricity has become since those years."

Lee said the charmed baryons were identified in the debris left behind from high speed collisions of photons, the particles of light which result when electrons are knocked out of orbit around an atom's nucleus.

Within that nucleus, particles known as hadrons are arranged in patterns — or quarks, in physics shorthand — that determine some characteristics of the baryon's behavior.

"There were previously three known kinds of quarks," said Lee's colleague, Dr. Bruce Knapp. "They could be combined in certain ways that would determine the behavior of a particle. But variations in the behavior indicated other patterns existed.

"If the hadrons are made up of combinations from the three known quarks, they are uncharmed. If they are lighter than normal, they contain elements of a fourth quark and are charmed, ' he said.

Lee admitted the discovery had little practical application now, but said its future potential was enormous.

"It is like the story about the newborn baby," he said. "No one knows now whether it will grow up to be good, bad or what."

Strike threatens trolly system

A strike threatened San Francisco's trolley, bus and cable car system with a shutdown for the second time in four months Thursday — at the height of a record tourist season. Municipal Railway operators and city negotiators were more than $3 million apart on a total pay package as a 12:01 a.m. Friday strike deadline approached. A walkout would affect the city's quaint cable cars, a prime attraction for thousands of visitors. A similar walkout threatened more than 750,000 bus passengers in the Los Angeles area where drivers and mechanics union leaders were negotiating with the Rapid Transit District. That contract expires at 12:01 a.m. Friday but negotiators said they hoped to hammer out a settlement.

Indictment names 4 JDL members

An indictment unsealed Thursday charged four members of the Jewish Defense League with firing shots into the Russian U.N. Mission and residential compound, placing two pipe bombs at the Iraqi U.N. Mission and blowing up a New Jersey gas station. The indictment said the alleged terrorists intended to harass the Soviet Iraqi "and other governments believed by the JDL to be antagonistic to the Jewish people and the state of Israel." The Jewish Armed Resistance, a splinter group of the JDL, took responsibility for all four incidents. One of the suspects was Russel Kelner, 35, of New York, a former Philadelphia school teacher turned weapons expert who is a major organizer for the JDL.

Thousands riot in Port Elizabeth streets

Thousands of blacks rampaged through the streets of three Port Elizabeth, South Africa, black suburbs Thursday, burning cars and buildings in the second day of racial riots in which at least 14 persons have died. A police spokesman said the rioters were "still active" in the black enclaves of Brighton, Zwide and Kwazekele. He said 23 blacks were wounded and 31 arrested in violence in the township in incidents where police fired on crowds. The latest deaths brought to 231 the number of persons killed in two months of nationwide racial upheavals.

in disgrace.

The President, eager to reunite a divided party still reeling from a bitter primary election campaign, used his speech at the final session of the 31st Republican National Convention here to sketch the record of his administration and proclaim a November victory.

In his acceptance speech, Ford did not ignore the scandals of Watergate which brought him to the White House.

"Anger and hatred had risen to dangerous levels, dividing friends and families," he said. "The polarization of our political order had aroused unworthy passions of reprisal and revenge."

And he recalled that on Aug. 9, 1974, when he took the oath of office, the nation was in deep recession.

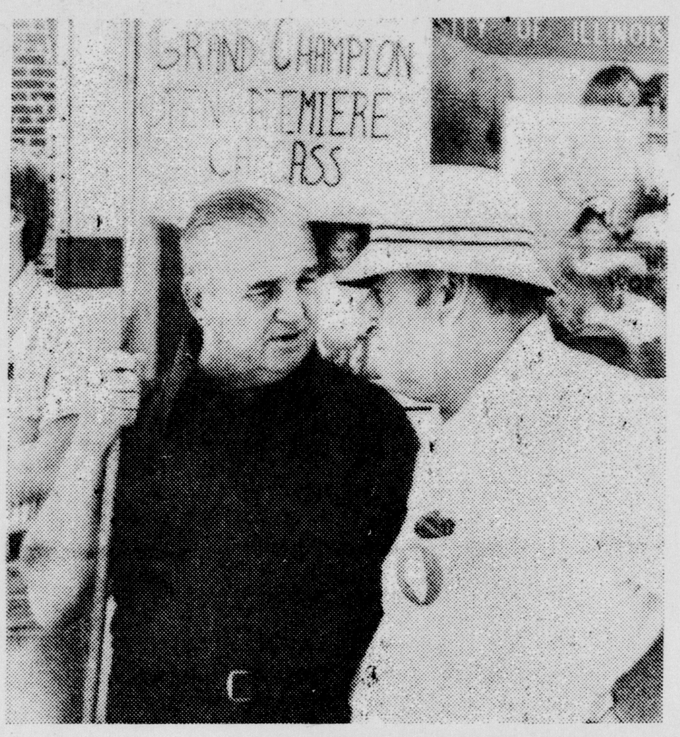

Dole's selection as Ford's running mate got a somewhat mixed reaction from Illinois Republicans. Most praised the move, but some, like U. S. Senator Charles Percy, R-Illinois, candidly stated "Dole will not be a big help to the party in the Chicago area."

The Kansas senator won the vice presidential nomination easily, with only token opposition from die-hard Reagan supporters who placed the name of U. S. Senator Jesse Helms, R-South Carolina, in nomination.

However, Helms called on the convention to back Dole, who he called "one of my best friends in the Senate."

The nomination of Dole marked a repeat of history. The last Republican convention held here in 1928 nominated another Kansan, Charles Curtis, to be Herbert Hoover's runningmate.

In the balloting for Dole's nomination, Illinois cast all 101 votes for Ford's choice. The state had had 14 Reagan supporters Wednesday night, but they closed ranks on the Dole vote in an effort to show a unified state delegation.

Plans made to avoid double aid claims

James Trainor, Illinois public aid director, said Thursday his department is canceling and turning over to authorities the cases of 11 persons who allegedly have collected public aid in both Illinois and Indiana. Trainor said he and Wayne Stanton, administrator of Indiana's Dept. of Welfare, in an attempt to curb fraud, have reached an agreement which allows the two states to exchange information about welfare recipients. As a result of earlier meetings, Trainor said, Indiana has supplied records of 25,000 recipients who receive assistance from 12 Indiana counties bordering Illinois, which will be checked against Illinois' total caseload. Illinois already has sent Indiana 37 cases likely to match those on Indiana's welfare rolls, he said. Eleven of those cases turned up in records of both states. Another six are being checked for possible fraud, Trainor said. Trainor said the state also is working with other border states to curb the use of two states' welfare rolls.

Final hearing on rail crossings

State Rep. Everett Steele, R-Glen Carbon, said Thursday a legislative subcommittee investigating safety problems at highway-railroad grade crossings will hold its final hearing Aug. 31 in Granite City. Stele said the Granite City meeting is the last of three meetings held to discuss solutions to crossing problems, determine why money appropriated by the legislature for protection devices has not been spent and proposed regulations for the crossings.

Unexpected rebate for residents

Viola Mayor Ivan Cooper said Thursday he and his colleagues on the village council think taxation is like borrowing a cup of sugar: You ought to give back what you don't use. So the council has voted to return $9,500 in unused village revenue to its 300 or so taxpayers in the form of $20 to $30 rebates in the fall. "I hope it would not displease anyone," Cooper said. "It isn't a big thing. It's sort of like returning a cup of sugar to a neighbor." Cooper said the council believes it can operate the village for the rest of the fiscal year, until next April, on current sources of revenue. "We just didn't quite need what we already asked for," Cooper said. The town has nothing to spend the money on since it needs no new equipment or buildings and its share of the state sales tax keeps increasing. When the council voted Monday night, only one trustee dissented. He wanted to keep the money for emergencies. "But we voted him down," another trustee said.

2 agencies to check antibias practices

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission said Thursday it will not ask two state agencies to stall the letting and awarding of construction contracts in East St. Louis because the agencies have promised a review of their contract procedures. FEPC Chairman Susan Vance said the Illinois Dept. of Transportation and the Illinois Capital Development Board will conduct "a thorough review of their procedures" to assure compliance with equal employment opportunity provisions in state construction contracts. She said the FEPC, therefore, will not pursue its 60-day moratorium request to allow it to investigate allegations of race and sex discrimination.

Bridgeview clerk dies in crash

Ronald J. Dawson, 35, the Bridgeview village clerk and collector, was found dead Thursday in his demolished car, which apparently veered off Ill. Rte. 45 and plunged down a 176-foot embankment into a wooded area west of suburban Palos Hills. A motorist reported seeing Dawson's auto traveling on the highway at a high rate of speed and authorities suspected the accident occurred at about that time. Dawson's wife phoned authorities early Thursday morning after she became concerned because he had failed to return home. State and local police searched the area throughout the night before finding the body at the bottom of the embankment. Investigators said the car was airborne for about 77 feet, sheering off the tops of several trees, and overturning several times before crashing to the ground. Dawson was elected village clerk in 1967 and reelected three times.

'Hi there, this is your plant talking'

"This is your plant speaking," said the sexy female voice. "I'm so happy in my home." So begins a recorded message attached to a talking plant stand which is one of the hits of the current National Hardware Show at McCormick Place. Marshall Bedol, 49, head of a Cleveland firm which makes plant stands, barbecues and garden accessories, said he was in Chicago in July attending the National Housewares Show when an attractive woman came into his booth.

"I was giving her the Marsh Allan plant stands sales pitch," he recalled, "when she said, 'your stands are so beautiful, you don't have to talk so much.' With that the wheels started turning. Bedol said when he got back to Cleveland he began a crash program to put together a talking device to be attached to his three tier, wire mesh plant stand so that it could be introduced in Chicago this week.

Three agencies go to court over school-aid issue

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago school system, the Illinois Office of Education and the state comptroller squared off in court Thursday over the payment of a $53.23 million penalty by Chicago schools for closing early last year.

Action taken Thursday by the Chicago schools and the IOE brought to three the number of lawsuits filed this week on the matter.

The Illinois Office of Education filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court to force the state comptroller to release about $48 million in school aid payments to Cook County, including Chicago.

The suit, filed by IOE legal counsel Julia Dempsey, asks that the court certify that the IOE can legally stretch Chicago's penalty payment over three years and that the court order Comptroller George Lindberg to pay the money.

MEANWHILE, the Chicago schools filed suit asking for an injunction against state schools Supt. Joseph Cronin, Lindberg and state Treasurer Alan Dixon.

The Chicago schools maintain that they should not have to pay the penalty at all because they were forced to close schools prematurely last year for lack of $164.9 million in school aid payments. The $53 million penalty was assessed when Chicago schools closed 16 days early last school year.

The suit, filed by school district counsel Michael Murray, also said the penalty was unconstitutional because Chicago schools were not consulted and that the penalty "is of such magnitude as to cripple the operation of the public education system" in Chicago.

EMPLOYES AT THE UNITED Card Co., Rolling Meadows, wanted to give their boss, Robert Koenig, president of the firm, "something different" for his birthday Thursday, so they hired a balloon, set it up on the front lawn of the plant and bid their employer "Bon Voyage." His last words as the balloon rose into the Northwest suburban skies: "Oh Nooooo!"

Lake Co. panel to vote today on rent subsidy

An application for federal funds to provide rent subsidies to 150 families in Lake County is expected to be acted on today by the Lake County Housing Authority.

The authority will vote on a final form of an application to the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for rent subsidies under the Section Eight Program.

Funds would be available to the county in mid-October if the application is approved by the county and HUD.

Robert Cisek, director of the housing authority, said if the funding is approved, 150 families would be chosen from the county, excluding the Waukegan and North Chicago areas. Those two cities have their own housing authorities, Cisek said.

THE FAMILIES chosen then would have to find rental units in the county that meed HUD standards and fall within the rent limits established by HUD. The families would pay only 25 per cent of their total income for rent and utilities, with the remainder paid by federal funds, Cisek said.

"Let's say a family of four has an income of $7,200," Cisek said. "They qualify for a two-bedroom unit because they have two children. They could rent a unit with utilities for a total of $234 a month. They would pay $150 and the housing authority would pay $84 directly to the landlord."

To be eligible for the program, a family must fall within income guidelines established by HUD. The total family income plus 10 per cent of the value of the family's assets are computed. The total cannot exceed $9,900 for a family of one; $14,200 for a family of four; or $17,800 for a family of eight, Cisek said.

The closer the family income is to the limit, the less benefit they would receive from the program, Cisek said. "The majority of our applicants will have about one-half the income limit or less," Cisek said.

Priority will be given to county residents and working families, but the program is not restricted to those groups, Cisek said.

CISEK ESTIMATED that 20 to 30 per cent of the households in the county would be eligible for the rent subsidies, including most of the senior citizens in the county.

A major stumbling block to the program is the lack of moderate-income rental units in the county, Cisek said.

"I assure you there will be difficulty, especially in finding three-or four-bedroom apartments. The units are scarce and rents exceed the fair market rents allowable by HUD," the housing authority director said.

For rental units in buildings without elevators, rent limits range from $175 for a studio apartment to $306 for a four-bedroom apartment. Rent limits for buildings with elevators are 10 per cent higher, Cisek said.

MOST MUNICIPALITIES prefer apartment developments with a large percentage of one-and two-bedroom units, Cisek said. "There have not been a lot of three-and four-bedroom units built in the past several years," he added.

The housing authority probably will have to ask HUD to raise the rent limits 20 to 30 per cent, Cisek said.

"They are set at the lower level of the rental market in the six-county area. It might work in some parts of this county but not in most parts of the county," Cisek said.

The authority expects to start notifying county residents to fill out a preapplication form as soon as the HUD funds are approved.

Arlington Park impressario

Razzle dazzle's his trademark

by JOE SWICKARD

Playboy Bunnies on horseback? Five thousand free halter tops for the ladies? Pro basketball players going against a team of jockeys?

What's next at Arlington Park — an exploding Tote Board that sends off rockets and sounds sirens when some railbird hits the Daily Double?

Has Bill Veeck been signed as a special consultant at the track? Nope, it's Joseph Joyce, chairman of the board and Madison Square Garden senior vice president, which are deceptively gray titles for a man with a flair for flash and splash.

JOYCE'S WARDROBE fits his title rather than his actions. Instead of race track plaids and two-tone patent leather platforms, he favors three-button suits and black wingtips.

But don't let the New York corporate image fool you, Joyce has plenty of ideas cooking.

"We want people to have a good time out at Arlington Park. A good time —win or lose," he said while relaxing in his Cadillac parked in the backstretch area.

Maybe that's the key to the success he has had in the few weeks since he has taken over the day-to-day operation of the track. He's walking the grounds and stopping in the barns instead of having to be tracked down in the maze of offices under the grandstands.

Joseph Joyce

"WE WANT TO get our name around. We want to focus attention on it," he said.

Joyce said the key to success in "this crazy business" is getting the customers to come out and enjoy themselves. And in the serious world of big business it helps if the customers enjoy themselves.

"We want the occasional track-goer out more often. If he comes out three times a year, let's try to make it five or six times a year. I'll admit it, we're in competition for the leisure dollar — the same money spent on movies, theaters and concerts," he said.

If that means keeping the patrons happy, you have to admit that he's trying to do just that.

THE GRASSY courtyard by the paddock area has been opened to the public and fitted with tables where the customers can relax. Joyce is thinking of getting some entertainment like Dixieland bands to soothe the frazzled nerves between the races.

"I'm trying to set up some hurdle or steeplechases as a 10th race. You don't get to see them too often. The last time anyone saw them here was in 1954. It would be special, that's why it would be a 10th race," he said.

Joyce may even give life to track-developer Curly Brown's dream of polo at Arlington Park.

"I hope to get some polo games, or more accurately, matches out here. I've been trying to do that," he said.

THE PROMOTIONAL gimmicks and stunts, as Joyce sees it, are just basic parts of selling a product to the public. Basic business sense decrees that the seller must get the buyer to try the product and then keep coming back for more.

Prior to joining the Madison Square Garden Corp., Joyce, an attorney for 17 years, served as executive vice president of the New York State Off Track Betting Corp. He said off track betting will probably be legalized in Illinois, but he isn't laying odds on when it will happen.

"It's coming — but when, I don't know," he said, adding, it must be "properly structured, and I stress that structured."

Business beckoned and it was time to leave the Cadillac conference room and talk to horsemen gathering for Friday's Illinois-bred yearling auction being held at the track.

ONE LAST QUESTION: Back in law school did he ever think he'd be running a race track someday?

"Nope, I never even thought about it. But if I had, I'm sure I would have thought it was going to be fun.

Under that three-button suit coat of Joseph Joyce beats a heart of hoopla. And he's off and running.

Chevy Chase golf course annex sought for homes village's advantage to annex the land because it would increase business and industrial tax bases and give Buffalo Grove a balance of uses. He also said it would bring Buffalo Grove two miles closer to Lake Michigan for a future water supply.

THE MASTER PLAN also recommends the golf course area remain a golf course, with less commercial zoning and more industry than being proposed for surrounding land.

Grossman said the golf course would have to be eliminated to provide fill to raise nearby land for housing developments. Much of the land is located on the flood plain, and planners hope to develop large detention areas through the present golf course land.

"The only way to make these lands work is to make the golf course disappear," he said.

He said multi-unit housing would have to be developed to make up for land lost because of the need for large detention areas. The report indicates total residential density would be 4.7 units per acre.

PARK OFFICIALS SAID the school and park donations proposed in the development plan would not be adequate.

Park District Comr. William Kiddle said the development would require a donation of about 32 acres for recreation use. He said only about 22 acres were being proposed, excluding the 149-acre forest preserve and additional water areas. He said forest preserves do not receive credit as park donations under village ordinances.

Grossman said there are about 40 acres of ponds and streams which he thinks should be counted toward a park donation.

"I had a little difficulty understanding (the park district's stand) because I do think there is such a thing as water recreation," he said.

KIDDLE ALSO questioned whether the land proposed for a seven-acre school site would be adequate for the number of students generated. Grossman's report indicates the development would generate 820 elementary school students and 246 high school students. He said Aptakisic-Tripp Dist. 102, which is anticipating serious financial problems in the next few years, would benefit financially.

Another problem raised at the meeting was that the land proposed for development is not entirely owned by the Johnson family, which is requiring the annexation and owns most of the property in the proposed development site.

A representative of the Chevy Chase Subdivision Homeowners Assoc. and a subdivision homeowner said they were worried they would be forced into annexation by Buffalo Grove. The proposed annexation would cause the subdivision to be completely surrounded by the village.

"How can one village and one landowner get together and decide what will happen to 200 innocent people who don't have a voice?" asked Gerald Roberts, 20 Columbus Pkwy., who also is a candidate for the Lake County Board. "We're going to get pulled into annexation — whether we like it or not — without having anything to say about it."

ROBERT AND MABEL Thoresen, 880 Prague Dr., treasurer of the homeowners group, were told the village could forcibly annex any property completely surrounded by it.

Comr. Stephen Goldspiel said he questioned the development of multiple-family developments because they are not selling well now.

"I really don't like the idea of zoning so much land R-9 or R-8 at a time when so many people are coming to us saying they can't build R-9 and R-8," he said.

Goldspiel also said he thought the traffic circulation designated on the plans was poor for such a development.

Grossman said the Johnsons hope to have the property annexed by the end of this year so they can begin the eight-year development project next year. The plan commission has not set a date for the next workshop session to review the proposed annexation and zoning.

190-acre rezoning on agenda today

The rezoning of 190 acres at the northeast corner of Euclid-Lake Avenue and Wheeling Road in Wheeling Township will be reviewed at 3 p.m today by the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

The acreage presently is zoned for single-family use. The proposed rezoning would change the designation to single-family that would allow more housing units per acre.

The zoning commissioners also will discuss a special-use request for portions of the same acreage.

Paul Marcy, secretary of the zoning board of appeals, declined to give added details about the proposed development. The land is owned by a family trust.

The meeting will be held at the Gary Morava Recreation center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights.

Body discovered in forest preserve had been in the woods was available Thursday night, but a spokesman for the Cook County Sheriff's police said "It may have been some time. There wasn't much of the body left."

THE SPOKESMAN said identification of the body probably will be confirmed by examination of dental records, "because it's hard to say what happened to him because of the deterioration of the body."

The body was recovered by personnel from the sheriff's office, although the Cook County Forest Preserve Rangers will be conducting an investigation into the body's discovery.

Rangers blocked off the northwest entrance to the forest preserve Thursday afternoon, keeping curiosity seekers and visitors away from investigators on the scene.

The body was transferred from Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge to the Cook County Morgue.

Police said Thursday they do not know the cause of death.

An autopsy is scheduled today by the Cook County Coroner's office.

Wendy's carnival for MDA will 'help people live' been listed as Wendy's carnival. But when the nickels begin flowing today, there will be many other helpers, too.

Wendy will be assisted by her two sisters, Deeana, 17, and Heather, 14. Their mother, Anne, has been placed in charge of the prize booth.

Neighborhood friends like Patty Brolin and Carrie Loukota will help to make this a memorable and, they all hope, a profitable carnival.

Wendy's carnival will feature bean bag tosses and puppet shows, pie plate tosses and dart games, each game costing 5 cents.

The girls will raffle large stuffed animals, all donated by loving and caring neighbors. An oversized dog and mouse figure to steal that show.

PUPPET SHOWS with handmade puppets are on the docket. And if any prizes remain, they will be auctioned to the highest bidder when the carnival concludes at 5 p.m.

Then all their money will be turned into a check and forwarded to the Muscular Dystrophy Assn.

More than 40,000 similar children's carnivals held last year raised more than $1.4 million for MDA research and patient service programs.

MDA's most visible patriot is entertainer Jerry Lewis, who conducts his annual telethon for funds during the Labor Day weekend.

That telethon will be televised this year on Chicago station WSNS, Channel 44. Older sister Deeana, 17, is making plans to work at the Lewis telethon in Chicago.

The girls were playing cards and there were prizes spread throughout the Copeland house one afternoon this week. General disarray ruled.

Anne Copeland spent a few minutes talking about her family's dedication to muscular dystrophy research, and to the ongoing fund programs conducted by Lewis.

"WE'VE HAD a special thing about this fund," Anne said. It's special because of Shelley.

She was their oldest sister. Shelley would be a high school graduate today. All her life she fought to overcome muscle weakness.

Shelley's problems were congenital. "Her movement was restricted, but a happier baby I don't think I ever had or a more alert baby," Anne said.

"Nothing was wrong with her mind, that's for sure. In fact, her goal was to be a writer. Terrific imagination."

Physicians never could determine why Shelley had congenital muscle weakness. The family did not know that Shelley had muscular dystrophy until three years ago when tests were conducted at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago.

"Prior to that we had not been given a name (for the disease)," Anne said. "We were only told that it was a nonprogressive muscle weakness."

Shelley Copeland became ill with pneumonia in September 1974. She was hospitalized first at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, then at Wesley Memorial Hospital in Chicago.

HER LUNGS began to fill with fluid. That caused congestive heart failure. "Twice she fought it off. The third time was just a little too much," Anne said. "She was lucid right to the very last."

It has been nearly two years since Shelley's death. "What you can change, you worry about. What you can't change, you don't worry about," Anne said.

"If anything, it made us a closer family. We've been able to talk about things. We've never shut out the fact that it happened. There's never been any taboo.

"WE'RE ALL aware that Shelley's missed," her mother said. "It's not as if it didn't happen."

The carnival they will hold today was Wendy's idea. She brought home papers from school. They wrote for more information. Now here it is, the day of their carnival.

"If we could get $100 from this, that would be fabulous," Anne said. "I'm thinking more like $50."

Today

Mike Klein's people

Wendy added, "And our prizes are fabulous. You can win that mouse for 5 cents. I think that's worth it."

So when a neighborhood gathers today, the nickels will become dollars. And the dollars will become more dollars.

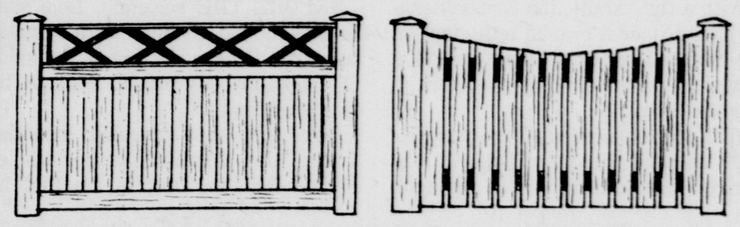

And that will be the greatest reward possible for Wendy Copeland who wrote on the back of an envelope: "I want to help people live."

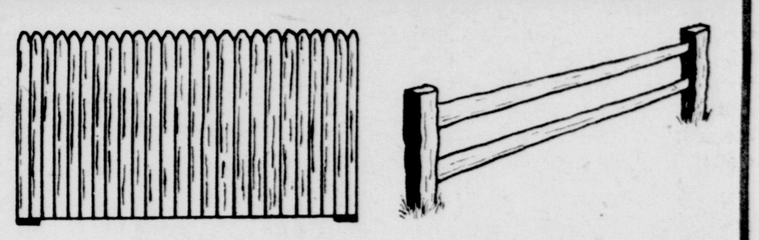

WENDY COPELAND comforts a stuffed dog and her older sister, Heather, does the same for an oversized mouse. Dog and mouse will be raffled today at the girls' Carnival Against Muscular Dystrophy.

Veteran tussler Dole adds steel to ticket

Kansas city, mo. (UPI) — When the Republicans need a tough political infighter who can take it as well as dish it out, they call on Bob Dole.

A tough campaigner is just what President Ford needs, facing an uphill fight against Democrat Jimmy Carter, and again Dole was called in to help, this time as Ford's running mate.

With a tight smile, the Kansas senator can deliver a caustic argument on the Senate floor or a biting joke to a crowd back home. The joke often is aimed at himself.

With the experience of two years as GOP national chairman, Dole, 53, was perhaps the natural choice for temporary chairman for the 1976 Republican National Convention at Kansas City, bordering his home state, and those same qualities undoubtedly were a factor in President Ford's selection of a running mate.

Well known in Washington, and with strong agricultural ties, Dole had been mentioned before as one who could shore up weak spots in the campaign against Carter.

BEFORE THE selection, Dole said he thought his chances were remote, but asked if he would accept, he said, "I think anybody would want to be vice president."

Dole also has avoided enemies among the defeated supporters of Ronald Reagan. Despite the fact he was a Ford delegate to the convention, the conservative senator refrained from attacking Reagan.

Even when he spoke in Ford's behalf at the Kansas state Republican convention — following an appearance by Reagan — Dole's tone was conciliatory. He said both were fine men he could support and that the party must unite behind whatever candidate is selected.

One of his stronger statements about Reagan on that occasion indicated the former California governor was criticizing Ford for problems born of a Democrat-controlled Congress.

"I THINK he (Reagan) is making a mistake in who runs that show," Dole told the Kansans.

The senator was warned by several people — including his wife, Federal Trade Comr. Elizabeth Hanford Dole — to stay away from the state-convention. Kansas Republicans said if he got enbroiled in the national party fight it could bring him as much trouble at home as his earlier involvement in the national GOP.

Dole's close identification with Richard Nixon and the fact he headed the national party at the time of the Watergate break-in are considered major reasons Dole nearly lost his Senate seat in 1974.

As one Capitol Hill observer quipped, "If you like Dick Nixon, you'll love Bob Dole."

Dole defeated former Rep. William Roy, D-Kan., by 13,532 votes of 794,137 votes cast in 1974.

BUT IN SPITE of the warnings, Dole got involved this year.

"Well, I think most of you voted for me for Congress because I didn't stay away from a good contest," he told the Kansas state convention.

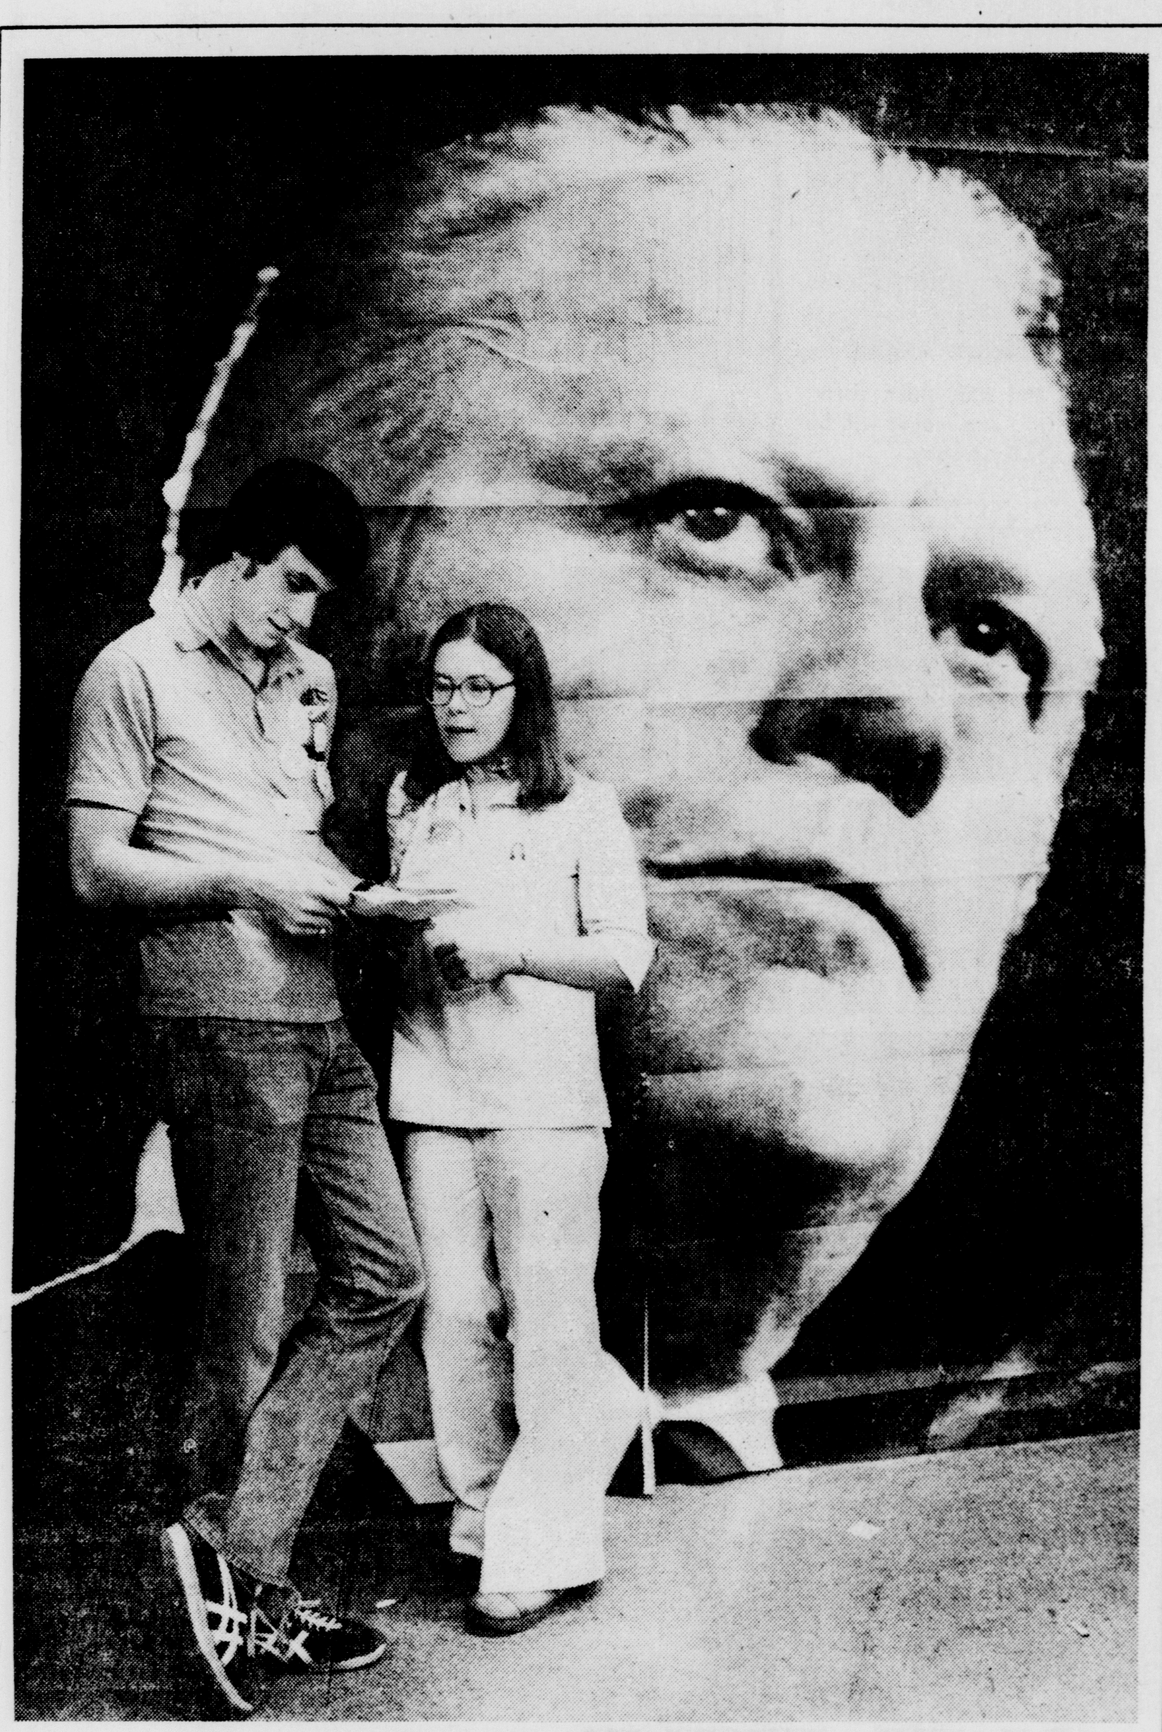

Dole was born July 22, 1923 at Russell, Kan., where he still has a home. He received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Arizona and law degrees from Washburn University in Topeka.

He served 5½ years in the Army in World War II, including a stint as an infantry platoon leader in the 10th Mountain Division in Italy. He twice was wounded and twice decorated for heroism.

He was hospitalized 39 months as a result of wounds that left him with a crippled right arm and hand. During his hospitalization he met his first wife, Phyllis, whom he divorced in 1972.

Dole began his political career at 26, with election to the Kansas House of Representatives in 1951. He served four terms as Russell County attorney, 1953-1961.

In 1960 he was elected to the house and reelected every two years until he won a Senate seat in November 1968, succeeding retiring Republican Frank Carlson.

Chuck Musfeldt Jr. and Betty Lytle go over notes on the convention floor.

Ford's cheerleaders

Students get a chance to do some rallying for the President, while finding a few moments to do some celebrity watching, too

by STEVE BROWN
Herald Political Writer

KANSAS CITY — For Chuck Musfeldt Jr. of Arlington Heights and Betty Lytle of Arlington Heights, the past week has been an opportunity to observe more political luminaries than for most delegates at the Republican National Convention.

The two area college students are participating in the Presidential Programs sponsored by the President Ford Committee.

"Our job is cheerleading," said Musfeldt, a 21-year-old pre-med student at Jacksonville University in Florida. The young people have been divided into teams and squads and sent around this convention city to welcome Ford and other members of the first family as they appear before various state delegations and at other activities related to the GOP gathering.

NEITHER LYTLE nor Musfeldt were political activists before the primary election campaign. However, they both got involved in the Ford effort outside of Illinois. Lytle, 19, is a student at Mt. Mary College in Milwaukee. Musfeldt worked for Ford in the Florida primary.

Despite the fact that Musfeldt has been staying at Benedictine College in Atchison, Kan., a two-hour bus ride from the convention center, he said the week has been worth the time.

"This has been the most fantastic week. It is like the zoo theory in action. There is one of every kind here. You have the gays and the hippies and the peons. Everyone from the President to Walter Cronkite is here and accessible.

But it's the food Lytle and Musfeldt complained about.

"It really stinks. I paid $130 for the trip, and I think $125 went for gas for the buses, $4 for the room and $1 for food," Musfeldt said. He added that he has devoted much attention to trying to get away from the Presidential's commant post at the Trade Mart in the Municipal auditorium in search of a decent meal.

BUT THE STUDENTS' schedule has been much more than looking for places to eat. The entire first family has visited the group, and other government officials including Vice President Nelson Rockefeller have stopped by for question-and-answer sessions.

"We have been terribly busy," said Lytle, a graduate of Arlington High School. "A lot of things get announced at the last minute, and we have to be on our toes," she added.

Even though the Presidentials have the self-described role as cheerleaders for the Ford campaign, the students believe their efforts are genuine.

"The appearances are organized and well orchestrated, but the people are sincere and really enthusiastic," she added.

Another member of the group, Carl Trehus of Barrington, noted that "all of us paid our own way out here so I am sure the reaction is really spontaneous and enthusiastic."

Musfeldt described the scene at the nightly convention activities as "kind of like a barroom brawl atmosphere."

"IF THEY (THE supporters of Ronald Reagan) start a chant or something, we are supposed to start a cheer back and drown them out," he said.

All of the students involved in the program sounded convincing in their support for the Ford campaign. Lytle said she got involved in the Ford effort almost accidentally when a friend needed to work on a political campagn as part of a college class.

Lytel said she chose the Ford campaign in Milwaukee for the friend's project because it seemed to have the most activity at the time. However, the friend decided not to get involved in the campaign, and Lytle got interested and worked for the President through the Wisconsin primary.

Lytle said she plans to go home next week and babysit before heading back to school. Musfeldt added that he wants to get some sleep, something that was in short order along with the food, and then head back to school.

"I have never seen a President up this close before, and I have seen him three times this week. You can get a little blase about it, but I figured that I would never have the time to do this again, and it's been super," Musfeldt said.

Robert who, from where?

Voters 'Dole' out views on Ford's running mate

by JOHN FRANK

"You want my reaction? It's who is he?" That was Francis Boyd's reaction to President Ford's selection of Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas as his running mate.

In random, on-the-street interviews, some Northwest suburban residents expressed surprise that Ford didn't pick a more well-known figure, such as Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee or Ronald Reagan. Others approved of the choice.

"It suits me fine," said F. C. Gray, an Arlington Heights resident who said he's been a Republican all of his 82 years.

"IT LOOKS LIKE the Democrats need someone to slam-bang them, to call them names," Gray said. He views Dole as the man for that job.

Gray was backing Reagan's try for the presidential nomination, but said that it really "doesn't make much difference" whether Reagan or Ford runs because "Carter hasn't anything to offer."

Another former Reagan supporter, Lilian Lidgen, 1605 N. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, said Ford's selection of Dole hasn't helped her decide if she can support Ford in November.

"I was really hoping Reagan would have gotten the nomination (for President)," Mrs. Lidgen said.

MARY LUNDGREN, 245 Clearmont Dr., Elk Grove Village, said she had hoped Reagan would have been chosen. "I sympathize with him," said the woman who described herself as an independent Democrat. "I wish everyone could have been a winner. But I'm going to vote for Carter."

Jane Adelman, 303 E. Camp McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights, said she didn't think Baker would be picked. "I really thought that Baker was thinking ahead to 1980," said Mrs. Adelman, who plans to vote for Jimmy Carter.

Mrs. Adelman said she also knew Ford would not select Texan John Connally. "That would have been a death wish," because of Connally's Watergate connections, Mrs. Adelman said.

"I'm sorry, I don't even know who Robert Dole is," said Mrs. Fred Hammond, 3601 Oriole, Rolling Meadows. Mrs. Hammond said she hadn't been following the Republican convention and had not expected Dole to be selected.

"I didn't know Robert Dole before Tuesday night," said Richard W. Hall, 2420 Brandenberry Ct., Arlington Heights. "I can only assume that President Ford chose someone similar to himself."

HALL, WHO WILL be voting for the first time this year, said he liked Ford and may vote for him in November because he believes "the country is not ready for a change of government."

Hall said that Dole's anonymity on the national scene did not bother him. "Nobody knew President Ford at the time he was picked as vice president, maybe it will be the same way with Sen. Dole," Hall said.

A Democrat, Leonard McCracken of Arlington Heights, said Dole is "a lackluster name" but that regardless of who Ford selected "I don't think it'll be much of a go" in November.

McCracken, who lives at 1229 S. Walnut St., said he thought Ford would select a more well-known personality to share the Republican ticket.

State delegates surprised by Dole but will back 'the great campaigner'

Illinois and Northwest suburban delegates to the Republican National Convention reacted with surprise to the nomination of Sen. Robert Dole as the party's vice presidential nominee, and were generally uncertain of the impact of the Kansan on the ticket.

Former Gov. Richard Ogilvie, head of the Illinois delegation, said, "It's going to be a little tough," to attract independents to the Ford-Dole ticket.

"It's an interesting selection," Ogilvie said. "I was surprised."

Sen. Charles Percy said Dole is "uniquely qualified to help bring the party together," but Percy said he was surprised that, considering the anti-Washington mood of the nation, neither Ford nor Carter went outside the Capitol for a running mate.

REP. JOHN B. ANDERSON said Dole has been "a dear and personal friend for years.

"I'm sure he will be a very good candidate," Anderson said. "My own thought had been that it would be a good idea to try to build the party by broadening the base. But I'm certainly prepared to support the nominees."

"He has a great sense of humor, and he is certainly a strong campaigner," said Glena D. Jicha of Palatine. She said she met Dole about six years ago when he was official of the Republican National Committee and was impressed with his campaign style.

"I don't know anything negative about him. He should be a strong candidate, especially in the Downstate areas," noted Irl H. Marshall of Highland Park.

WILLIAM J. HEFFERNAN of Arlington Heights said he "personally liked Dole." Heffernan said he was not sure what Dole would do for the party initially, but he was sure that Dole would become an asset later in the campaign.

WHILE MOST local delegates said Ford had made a wise selection in Dole, State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, besides praising the choice said Dole could help the GOP gain the support of Reagan backers from the western part of Illinois because of the senator's strong record on agricultural programs.

Harold B. Smith Jr., of Barrington, said Dole will "help the campaign." Smith said Dole got an enthusiastic reception from both Ford and Reagan fund-raisers at a meeting of the national Republican Finance Committee Thursday afternoon.

Two Illinoisans were honored by being escorts for Dole and Ford as they went to the podium to give their acceptance speeches. U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, an ardent Reagan supporter, escorted Dole, while U.S. Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, a sometimes sharp critic of administration policies, accompanied the President.

Veteran delegate returns to scene of -- his marriage

by STEVE BROWN
Herald Political Writer

KANSAS CITY — For many delegates, this Republican National Convention was a new experience in a new town.

But for Irl H. Marshall, of Highland Park, the 31st Republican National Convention and Kansas City was nothing new.

"I was married here in 1925 and I attended the last Republican Convention here, as a guest mind you, in 1928," said Marshall, who has been one of the most colorful delegates from Illinois at this convention.

THROUGH MOST of the GOP gathering, and at the state delegation caucuses, Marshall has sported a bright orange blazer, which was the "Illinois uniform" at another convention several years ago.

Marshall has served as a delegate to three national conventions from the 12th Congressional District and said he has attended several others as a spectator.

Kansas City has become a much different town from when Marshall last attended a convention here.

"It has changed a lot," Marshall said. But he added that the obvious signs of redevelopment make the changes appear for the better.

Marshall created a bit of a flurry earlier in the week with an announcement that he planned to push for a delegation resolution calling for Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfled, a former congressman who represented the area, to be President Gerald R. Ford's choice for the vice presidential nomination.

HE WOULD HAVE been great for the ticket," Marshall declared, but his effort never really got off the ground because party leaders persuaded him that the resolution probably would not pass.

Besides his activities in the Republican Party, Marshall also serves as a chairman of the board of Duraclean Co. in Deerfield.

The Republican activist, who enjoys his reputation for his long-time political work, spent a good portion of this week greeting friends from other states. Marshall, like a number of other GOP partisans, is still a supporter of former President Richard Nixon, but he is quick to admit that Nixon could do no real good for the party by attempting to play a role in this election year.

Marshall will make no predictions this week, but the man who is well past his 70th birthday refuses to rule out that he will not be at the 1980 Republican Convention with the same spirit and enthusiasm he brought with him to this gathering this week.

GOP defectors to get welcome by new party

by WANDALYN RICE

Officials of the American Independent Party, which was formed in 1968 to support Alabama Gov. George Wallace, are prepared to welcome disenchanted Republican conservatives now that Ronald Reagan has lost his GOP presidential bid.

The party, which will have its presidential nominating convention Aug. 26-28 in Chicago, already has been approached by emmissaries from such leading GOP conservatives as Phyllis Schlafly, Joseph Coors and New York Sen. William Buckley, Dr. John Roche, head of the Illinois delegation to the party convention said this week.

Roche said, "We expect the Republicans to come walking our way. We are sort of hoping that Gov. Reagan will come to us, but whether he does or not, we will have a presidential candidate."

Roche said that if Reagan does not defect from the GOP, New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson, who currently is attending the GOP convention, will be the front-runner for the American Independent nomination.

ANOTHER CANDIDATE for the party nomination is former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox, who has announced he will be a candidate. Roche said he expects Maddox to campaign actively at the convention but "while he's very well known, he doesn't sound very serious to many of us."

Possible vice presidential nominees, according to Eileen Shearer, news coordinator for the convention, include a former top Wallace fund-raiser, Mrs. Schlafly and Ellen McCormick, the New York housewife who ran for the Democratic presidential nomination on an anti-abortion platform.

Roche said the American Independent Party expects to have its candidates on the ballot in about 40 states, but not in Illinois. He said with liberal former Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota running as an independent against Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter and the GOP nominee "it will be a four-way race."

ROCHE SAID GOP conservatives, including Mrs. Schlafly and Coors, one of the chief sources of campaign funds for conservative candidates, have not committed themselves to attend the independent convention. "I think they wanted to wait to make sure the Republicans were having a funeral in Kansas City and not a convention," Roche said.

Roche said key points of the party platform call for a Constitutional amendment banning all abortion, reduction of government spending, a repayment of the national debt, elimination of federal antipoverty programs, removal of restrictions on earnings for those receiving Social Security benefits and "full implementation of the right to bear arms."

He said that if GOP conservative leaders do join the party in time for the convention, party leaders want to make sure they don't overshadow longer-time party members. "We want it to be clear that this is our convention," Roche said. "These people (GOP conservatives) will be our guests."

Dam, flu shot issues divide Crane, Mikva

Construction of a hydroelectric dam in North Carolina and federal liability insurance for the swine flu inoculation program were the two issues that divided the Northwest suburb's two congressmen during recent roll call votes.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, voted on opposite sides on the two issues.

In the U.S. Senate, U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., voted on opposite sides on tax reform and military equipment issues.

Following are the roll call votes for Aug. 5-10

Revive national debates

The Kennedy-Nixon debates during the presidential campaign of 1960 proved that public election forums provide valuable information to the electorate — and unfortunately discouraged other candidates from risking the same kind of exposure.

This year should be the time to revive the presidential debate as a way of informing the voters of the issues and the candidates. For that reason a national petition drive by the League of Women Voters deserves support.

The league is launching the petition drive with the intention of collecting more than two million signatures by mid-September calling for debates between Pres. Gerald Ford and Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter.

Petitions will be passed by members of Northwest suburban leagues, including those in Palatine and Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect.

The petition drive deserves to succeed, not only in collecting two million signatures, but in persuading Carter and Ford of the grass-roots support for presidential debates.

The debates would be invaluable to the voters in several ways. They would clarify stands on issues and point out the key differences between the two candidates.

In addition the debates would provide the kind of exposure of the two candidates that will allow voters to measure the style of the two men side by side.

In recent years, the American electorate has too often been subjected to slick, media-oriented "selling of the president" type campaigns. These campaigns have pointed out only too well that candidates can be insulated from the public.

Face-to-face debates, while they would not prevent slick image-making, at least present the presidential candidates with partially uncontrolled situations in which they will be called upon to respond.

Since the 1960 debates, candidates, particularly candidates who were leading in the polls, have scrupulously avoided debates because of their uncontrollability.

This election year, voters of America deserve a close look at the candidates. To provide that insight it is not too much to ask the candidates to face each other in a public forum.

Rogers good man; way picked bad

Wheeling trustees made a sound decision when they elected William Rogers to fill the board vacancy left by the resignation July 30 of Gilbert Monoson.

Rogers, who ran unsuccessfully for the board in 1975, is a long-time village resident, a member of the Wheeling Environmental Advisory Commission and a man who has demonstrated his community interest and involvement on numerous occasions.

Although we believe Rogers will make a good trustee and act in the best interest of the village, we must object to the manner in which he was selected. Trustees discussed the Rogers appointment privately and announced the appointment at Monday's village board meeting.

We believe Wheeling officials should have conducted public hearings on the vacancy and given other village residents the opportunity to apply for the job, or at least comment on those under consideration. Such was not the case.

The village board is faced with the sensitive and difficult task of restoring confidence in village government. Monoson, the man whom Rogers replaces, is under indictment for bribery and official misconduct. Monoson himself was elected to the board following a major zoning scandal which rocked village hall in 1974. Now even Monoson, one of the reformers, is under a cloud.

Because of the past actions of a few, the entire Village of Wheeling is unfairly burdened with the stigma of corruption and back-room politics. It is much too easy for residents of this and other villages to say 'they're all crooked' and to assume that corruption is the rule rather than the exception.

One way to help remove this stigma is to take extra pains to be open and consult the public at every opportunity.

Wheeling trustees said they did not conduct hearings or consult the public because they believed Rogers was the best man and would have been selected anyway. This may be true. But public participation in this important decision would have served the best interest of the village and would have been a step toward restoring public confidence.

400 mile swim record by guards deserves more than a thank you

Five Elk Grove Village lifeguards have broken the Guinness world record by swimming 400 miles in the fastest time on record while collecting more than $400 for the Chicago Heart Fund.

Residents from throughout the metropolitan area participated in the recent swim-a-thon for the heart fund, but the five youths — Tim Bird, 15; Gary Drake, 16; Jim Cashman, 17; Greg Bacchus, 17; and Craig Culver, 18 — are worthy of special note. We commend them for their 170 hours, 58 minutes and 28 seconds in the water which represent a symbolic effort for others in the area who participated in the fund-raising event.

Dozens of worthwhile fund raisers are held each year, and most of them depend upon voluntary effort and participation. The boys who swam at Disney Pool in Elk Grove deserve commendation from the Heart Fund for their extra effort.

Fire officials play turnabout and thank people for support

We often read letters in The Herald from people wishing to publicly thank the paramedics.

This time, however, we the paramedics and firemen of The Buffalo Grove Firemen's Association would like to thank the people of Buffalo Grove and the people of the Wheeling Fire Protection District who enthusiastically supported the ambulance tax referendum last month.

In addition, we would like to thank all the organizations and individuals who worked to get information about the referendum to the people.

The organizations included: The Buffalo Grove Amvets; Lions Club; Nurses Club and the Jaycees as well as individual assistance from Sherry Horan, Mel Kandel, Diane Mattson, Mike McDonald, Diane Spanier and Barb Urban.

We thank you all for your vote of confidence and support and assure you that we will continue to supply the best service possible.

Chemist clarifies stories

I read with some interest the article that appeared Aug. 2 concerning the derailment of a 10-car Baltimore & Ohio R.R. frieght at Blanchester, Ohio. Two tank cars containing ethylene oxide were involved in the accident. I object to the statements made in this article concerning the alledged toxicity and explosion hazard of ethylene oxide. As a research chemist, I have used this chemical a number of times and can testify to the fact that the substance is not nearly as dangerous as the article would suggest.

Statements were made in the story to the effect that ". . . if the fumes so much as touch you, they would burn you before you could get your clothes off," ". . . the chemical's temperature rises to about 1,000 degrees when it comes into contact with air," and ". . .the most dangerous gas railroads carry," are at best grossly misleading or completely erroneous.

Like most flammable substances, the gas, if confined, could explode if ignited, but the liquid possesses no explosion hazard. Also, the temperature of the gas certainly does not reach 1000 degrees upon contact with air. If ignited, however, the flame temperature might get that hot under certain conditions. Like most reactive chemicals, ethylene oxide can cause irritation to the mucous membranes or skin when exposure reaches a high enough concentration, however, it is substantially less toxic than many other bulk chemicals transported by rail such as chlorine and phosgene.

I have been increasingly concerned with the trend in the media toward sensationalizing the hazards of chemicals. Most chemicals are quite safe when handled properly and pose little or no risk to the public. The enormous benefits mankind reaps from chemistry far outweighs any possible dangers the use of chemicals may offer. I think that you could do the public a service by carrying articles which describe the advantages chemicals bring society rather than concentrating on sensational stories about accidents involving chemicals.

Worthy of note

My son, Jim, my daughter, Camille, and I wish to extend our gratitude and thanks to the paramedics, especially Johnson, Moran and Lee Plate of the Palatine Fire Dept. who responded to an emergency on Aug. 5 in my behalf.

Their adeptness and understanding of the situation will never be forgotten.

I also wish to thank Rich Rehner, of the Elk Grove Fire Dept., a friend of the family who placed the call to the Palatine squad.

God bless them all.

Taking the initiative

A favorable rule on honesty amendments may mean a progressive step forward

by WANDALYN RICE

A News Analysis

In California last June, the voters decided not to impose strict safety standards on future construction of nuclear powerplants when they voted down Proposition 15.

This fall, California voters will have the opportunity to force their legislature to provide more funding for the board set up to deal with labor disputes involving farm workers.

Both measures are the result of California's system, which allows initiative petitions from citizens for both Consitutional amendments and legislative issues. To some, the system is the hallmark of democracy. To others, it is democracy unleashed to the point of anarchy.

Those two opposing views of the initiative petition will be the focus next week when the Illinois Supreme Court hears arguments on whether the three proposed "political honesty amendments" will be in the Illinois ballot in November.

There is perhaps only one thing on which the opponents in the case agree — if the Supreme Court rules in favor of the honesty amendments, Illinois will have taken a long step toward adopting the California system of initiative petition.

The system used in California, which allows both Constitutional and Legislative initiatives, also operates in other states, most of them in the west. It is a result of the progressive reform movements that swept the country at the turn of the century under the leadership of Wisconsin's Robert LaFollette and others.

The results of the system are wide-ranging. In Oregon, because voters can call a referendum to reverse any action of the leigslature, all attempts to impose a state sales tax have been defeated. In Colorado, voters by referendum banned the 1976 Winter Olympics.

In California, where the initiative petition has evolved into an art, strict laws were passed governing campaign financing, registration of lobbyists and conflict of interest.

To leaders of the Illinois Coalition for Policital Honesty, supporters of the political honesty amendments, the unlimited initiative is a positive way to force responsive government. Unlimited initiatives "would be the best thing that could happen in Illinois," Thomas Quinn of the coalition says. "Chaos does not descend on a state because the people are allowed to vote on issues."

Samuel Witwer Sr., president of the Constitutional Convention that drafted the 1970 Illinois Constitution, takes the opposite view. The convention, he says, rejected the idea of an unlimited initiative "because of the difficulties it has caused in other states."

Wandalyn Rice

An unlimited initiative, Witwer says, "would make a shambles of the Illinois Constitution" and as a result "it wouldn't be long before we'd be in worse shape than California."

Coalition officials dismiss Witwer's arguments as the efforts of what they call "an entrenched political power structure" to keep power out of the voters' hands. Patrick Quinn, secretary of the coalition says, "I expected Witwer to say in court that it would be an end to Western civilization if we succeeded."

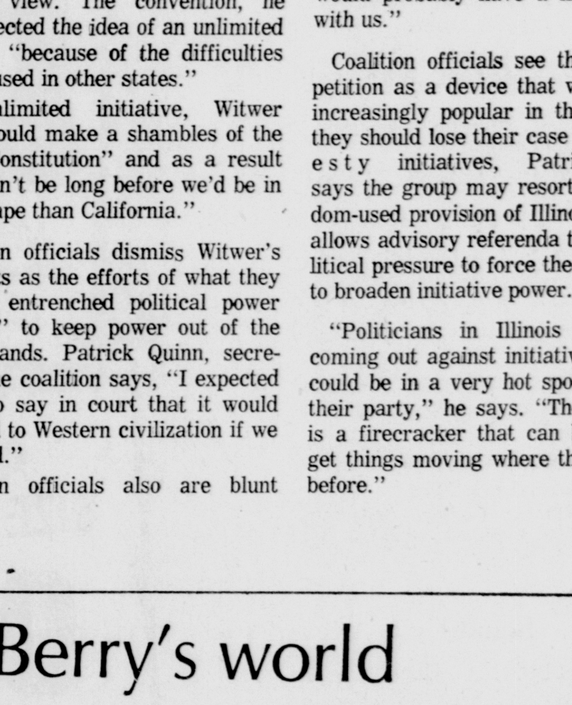

Coalition officials also are blunt about the fact that if they succeed in getting the honesty amendments on the ballot, they have other plans. Since the Constitution clearly limits citizen petitions to Constitutional amendments, Patrick Quinn says the group may support a Constitutional amendment to provide for legislative initiative in Illinois. Legislative initiatives grant law-making power directly to voters through referendum.

"That (the legislative initiative) is something that would be enormously popular," Patrick Quinn says. "It would probably have a high priority with us."

Coalition officials see the initiative petition as a device that will become increasingly popular in this state. If they should lose their case on the honesty initiatives, Patrick Quinn says the group may resort to the seldom-used provision of Illinois law that allows advisory referenda to apply political pressure to force the legislature to broaden initiative power.

"Politicians in Illinois who start coming out against initiative petitions could be in a very hot spot whatever their party," he says. "The initiative is a firecracker that can be used to get things moving where they haven't before."

Don't become a victim

How to avoid the debt collector

Nobody loves the debt collector. To him falls the never-pleasant, often stomach-wrenching task of convincing people to fulfill broken promises. His view of the human race as he confronts it in his day-to-day work must be rather fearsome. His job begins after "please" has lost all effect. His starting point is stern and can run on through brow-beating all the way to nasty.

For every tale you can tell of debt collector brutality, he can probably tell one or two of debtor infidelity. Many of his tactics have long been accused of being less than wholesome and more than necessary to get the job done. The collector is a man doing his appointed job, which he might not like any more than the collectee. But there's no excuse for unfair collecting practices. If you think that you may have been a victim of such, the Federal Trade Commission would want to know of it. They can help eliminate such practices, but only if they know when and where they exist.

Some of the unfair collecting practices are as follows:

- Using collection notices that contain false or misleading representations, such as notices that falsely appear to be legal process papers.
- Notifying a debtor's employer of a past-due account, or requesting the employer to help collect the debt, thus bringing undue pressure on the debtor.
- Harassing the debtor through profane or obscene language, or by placing telephone calls continuously or at unusual times.
- Threatening to damage the debtor's credit status by referring his name to a bona fide credit reporting agency, when no such action was actually taken or contemplated.
- Using violence or threats of violence to collect debts.
- Threatening to seize items which, by law, are exempt from legal collection process.
- Using fraudulent service of court summons to obtain default judgments without notice.

Notify the Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D. C., if you know of any such practices.

Meanwhile, to avoid having to confront a debt collector, try to confine your credit dealings to local credit grantors (merchants, lenders and so forth) who have a known reputation for fair and honest dealings in all matters. Out-of-town credit grantors can be difficult to communicate with. And merchants who ballyhoo how easy their credit is can be the hardest to deal with when it comes to delinquency.

At the first inkling that you might fall behind in any payments, communicate in the flesh with the creditor. If you seek his cooperation early, and if you perform in accordance with whatever accommodations he may offer, you'll avoid his later wrath, and that of the collector's. I repeat: in the flesh; not by phone or letter. There's simply no substitute for a person-to-person meeting to keep the air clear, cooperative and honest.

Dow dives 11 points on Dole choice

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market Thursday suffered its worst loss in nearly three months as Wall Street showed disappointment with President Ford's choice of Sen. Robert Dole as his running mate and concern over tensions in Korea.

The selling resulted in the Dow Jones industrial average plunging 11.13 points to 983.88, the worst loss since it fell 19.22 points on May 24. The Dow lost 4.33 points Wednesday after pushing through the 1,000 level at the outset of that session. It has failed on numerous occasions this year to hold above the high level.

"Wall Street was very disappointed over Dole's selection," said Newton Zinder, vice president of E. F. Hutton. "They also were disturbed by the situation in Korea." Allied and North Korean troops were placed on alert following Wednesday's slaying of two American officers in the Panmunjom truce village.

Thursday's setback was widespread. The NYSE common stock index fell 0.63 to 55.22 and the average price of an NYSE common share decreased hy 38 cents. (Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, lost 1.17 to 103.39.)

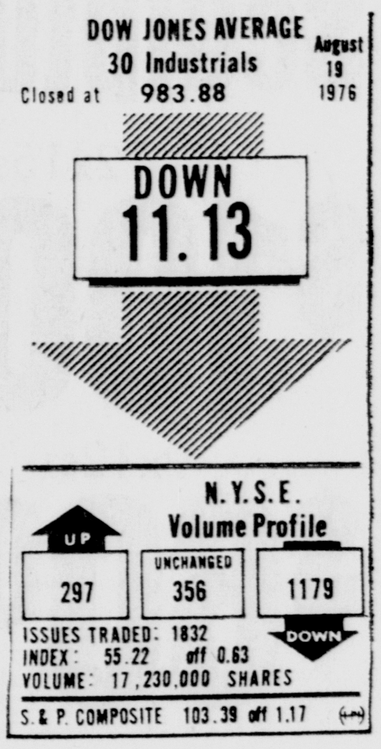

Declining issues routed advances, 1,179 to 297, among the 1,832 issues crossing the tape.

Volume totaled 17,230,000 shares, up slightly from the 17,150,000 traded Wednesday.

American Airlines led the Big Board active list, losing 5/8 to 13-7/8 on 193,000 shares, including a block of 143,000 shares at 14. The rest of the airlines group was weak with UAL Inc. losing 1 to 25¼, Delta 1 to 37¾ and Northwest ¾ to 30¼.

General Telephone & Electronics was the second most active issue, off 1/8 to 28¾ on 190,000 shares. Richmond Corp., the third most active Big Board issue, lost 7/8 to 20-1/8 on 152,200 shares.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share decreased by 12 cents. Volume totaled 2,134,000 shares, compared with 1,894,000 traded Wednesday.

Business briefs

Bankers Trust has 'money problems'

The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday Bankers Trust New York Corp., the nation's seventh largest banking organization, "has been experiencing financial difficulties." Bankers Trust controls nine banks in New York State. The banks hold $10.4 billion in assets and account for one of every $12 of assets in New York State's commercial banking system, the board said. The board epxressed the view in denying the holding company's application to take control of the First National Bank of Mexico, a small institution in suburban Syracuse, N.Y. A spokesman for Bankers Trust New York Corp. denied the financial holding company was experiencing financial difficulties.

Thomson buys Mt. Vernon paper

Thomson Newspapers Inc. of Des Plaines has bought the Mount Vernon Register-News Co. The announcement was made by St. Clair McCabe, executive vice president of Thomson Inc., and by John E. Rackaway, president of the Register-News Co. and editor of the newspaper, and by his brother, William C. Rackaway, secretary-treasurer of the company and business manager of the newspaper. The Thomson organization owns several other newspapers in the United States and Canada. Robert K. Thomson, vice president of the Register-News Co. and advertising manager of the newspaper, will be appointed general manager under the new ownership, McCabe said.

Corporate profits slow to 2.9%

Corporate profits before taxes slowed to an increase of 2.9 per cent in the second quarter, the Commerce Department said Thursday. The slowdown from the 7.5 per cent rise in the first quarter was further confirmation that the nation's economic recovery relaxed last spring. Corporate profits rose $4.2 billion to an annual adjusted rate of $145.3 billion, Commerce said. This compared with a $9.8 billion rise in the first quarter. In another report, Commerce confirmed its preliminary estimate of July that the nation's economic growth slowed in the spring quarter. Commerce estimated the gross national product (GNP) at $1.259 trillion, a modest downward revision from the preliminary of $1.260 trillion.

Telemed earnings up 30% a share

Telemed Corp., Hoffman Estates, announced a 30 per cent increase in earnings per share for the first quarter ended June 30 compared to year-earlier earnings. Gerald Kien, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said earnings per share in the first quarter amounted to 13 cents compared to 10 cents for the previous period. Net quarterly income rose to $355,223 compared to $289,214 a year earlier, and revenues increased to $2,125,559 from the previous $1,900,825. Telemed provides computer-assisted electrocardiography services and related equipment to medical facilities in the United States and Canada.

Boost in buyer optimism noted

Consumer optimism is increasing in North and Northwest suburban families, reports the Continental Bank. The Chicago bank's quarterly Family Financial Survey shows 38 per cent of the north suburban residents surveyed believe their fiannces are "better" compared to approximately 25 per cent in the previous survey. The survey included 750 families in the Chicago metropolitan area. Although north suburban residents gained optimism about the economy, the overall Consumer Sentiment Index dipped to 103 points from the previous 113 mark. "Consumers maybe suspicious and perhaps even worried about the economy's recovery and expansion during the coming year," said Janice Ventura, Continental's money management specialist and coordinator of the survey.

Government needs auditing: CPA

Large and small government units must establish a system for obtaining adequate financial information, said Clark Hollingsworth, chairman of the governmental accounting committee of the Illinois CPA (Certified Public Accounts) Society. "New York's financial situation as it now appears may not be the exception but the rule," Hollingsworth said. "Surveys have shown that only about 60 per cent of large cities are even audited. In this respect, Illinois is far ahead of most states by requiring that many local governmental units be audited annually."

Oil magnates invest in Middle East

by LE ROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Arabs and Iranians, who it was feared might gobble up major western industries with their oil riches, instead seem to be putting most of their money to work at home.

They have invested substantial sums in the West but the total is a drop in the bucket compared to the $40-$60 billion they have poured into their own countries to industrialize and raise a standard of living depressed for centuries.

They also have bought armaments both from the Soviet Union and some western nations because of their continuing bitter distrust of Israel and rivalries among themselves.

But the published armament purchases of 17 Arab countries and Iran (which is an oil-rich Moslem country whose people are not Arabs) amount to only 12 per cent of known investments in their economy in the past two years and fall far behind some $16.25 billion invested in industry and $7.9 billion invested in transportation.

THESE FIGURES, compiled by various statistical sources and published in Aramco World, a magazine put out by Arabian American Oil Co., cover only the period from December 1973 to January 1975. They total $38 billion and the editors of the magazine say that for the two and a half years up to June 1976, the total could be $62 billion.

Surprisingly, the study showed France, the colonial ruler ousted since World War II by so many of the Arab states, still enjoys cordial trade relations with the Moslem world and landed the biggest share of the 1974 contracts — $10.12 billion. The United States got $6.07 billion and West Germany, Italy, Japan and Britain each $2 billion to $4 billion. The Soviet bloc got less than $2 billion.

The study also pinpointed the rapid growth of the Arab steelmaking industry. Damascus steel was famous at the time of the Crusades but there was no steel industry worth mentioning in the Arab world five years ago.

Now all but four of these Moslem countries produce steel in new mills that convert iron ore directly into sponge iron for electrical steel furnaces, bypassing the costly and air-polluting blast furnace. It is thought possible the new Arab iron mills may become suppliers of sponge iron to Japanese and European steel mills. An abundance of natural gas for the fuel is the big advantage of the Arab steel mills.

ANOTHER SURPRISE in the report is the rapid progress of Algeria whose industrial production grew 30 per cent in 1973 and probably even better than that in the past two years. Algeria, largely agricultural under French rule, has let contracts in the past two years for a wide variety of industrial projects.

Naturally, the petrochemical industry is of prime importance to the Arabs and Iranians because they want to integrate their oil industry and extract as much benefit from it as possible. Yet, of the huge 1974 investments, only $623.6 million went into petrochemicals. That's mainly because so much of their oil wealth is controlled by international companies who prefer to process it elsewhere.

Aramco World comments on another weakness of the Arab investments in their own economy — their lack of technicians and highly skilled labor. The investments in new plants requiring such skills are perforce, relatively modest.

During shooting, the cast of "HAWMPS" posed with their camels for a formal portrait.

Herd of camels share the glory in 'HAWMPS'

by VERNON SCOTT

Producer Joe Camp hit the jackpot last year with a scruffy little dog in a picture titled "Benji."

The film earned $30 million on an investment of a measly $350,000.

Camp, whose Mulberry Square Productions makes its headquarters in Dallas, has invested $2 million in his second movie, "HAWMPS."

It is one thing to finagle the movie-going public into falling in love with a winsome dog and quite another to kindle affection for 16 ugly "ships of the desert."

CAMP HIMSELF fell prey to Benji's adorable ways. But the charms of the camels were lost on him during production of "HAWMPS."

Neither did the dromedaries (one-humped beauties) display any deep seated feeling for the producer. The only sign of camel affection for human beings was provided by Tsetse, the lone Bactrian camel (a two-humper) in the herd.

Tsetse is about twice as big as the 15 dromedaries and doubtless has a heart to match. But her displays of ardor were met with rebuffs from actors and crew alike.

Her passion was manifested by rapturous groans, accompanied by nuzzilng her massive head against unsuspecting members of the company.

"Camels are independent loners," said Camp, somewhat defensively. "They didn't respond to affection. But they certainly weren't hostile as we'd heard they might be. Not one actor was bitten, kicked or spat on. The only two times our wranglers were thrown were when they were riding horses."

One of the ungainly beasts achieved a measure of notoriety by helping capture a fleeing shoplifter in a shopping center near a location site in Tucson, Ariz.

SHE WAS TANYA, one of the featured camels in the pack. Just how one determines a featured camel from an extra or bit-part camel defies analysis. Certainly it couldn't be on the basis of beauty.

At any rate, as Camp tells it, there was an uproar in front of one of the stores as the movie company took a break between scenes. While the film crew looked on a man broke from the door and ran for daylight.

The shop-lifter fled on foot across the desert. He hotfooted it away from his pursuers and appeared to be making a clean getaway. A wrangler aboard Tanya gave chase in what could have passed for a scene from a Laurel and Hardy epic.

The miscreant, sure he was making good his escape, heard the pounding hooves of pursuit. He turned and in horrified disbelief stopped dead in his tracks. Bearing down on him was the spavined legged Tanya, galloping along in her splay-footed gait. The wrangler was hanging on for dear life.

Quickly, the felon snatched up an enormous rock, hoping to unhorse (or uncamel) his pursuer. It was a touchy moment for Tanya's passenger. But Tanya, through some combination of myopia, stupidity and latent misanthrophy, continued to bear down on the ripoff artist.

At the last moment the man threw down the rock and flung his arms upward in the traditional pose of surrender, possibly the first man in American history to be run to ground by a vengeful dromedary.

AS THE COPS led him away the disconsolate thief was heard to say, "The boys in the slammer will never believe this."

Unhappily, the episode was not captured on film. It could have been the highlight of "Hawmps."

Brief history of Camel Corps

Unlikely as it may seem now, America very nearly became a nation explored and settled on camelback.

Before the American Southwest could be settled, or even crossed safely, protection from the Indians was necessary. Charged with this task, the Army sprinkled a line of dedicated but feeble forts across the routes which would bring pioneers to the new territory. Their only mode of transportation, however, was the horse, mule or ox, and these quickly proved to be totally inadequate for traveling between the outposts with sufficient supplies to maintain them.

In 1853 Jefferson Davis became Secretary of War under President Franklin Pierce and, based on his knowledge of transportation in the deserts of the Near East, he began immediately to lobby for the importation of camels to do the job. It took two years of patience and politicking to convince Congress to give the camels a try. It finally voted to spend $30,000 to purchase a herd of camels.

THE PRESIDENT approved the bill on March 3, 1855, and Secretary Davis sent Army Maj. Wayne and Navy Lt. Porter to Arabia to obtain the best camels they could find.

By Feb. 11, 1856, the Navy ship "Supply" left for the U.S. carrying its strange, "hawmped" cargo. Three months later it docked at Indianola, Tex., to general relief, especially by the camels who were overjoyed to be on dry land again.

The camels proved a blessing for the Army once the men learned to handle them. It was not uncommon to have ordinary camels carry a 550-pound load (more than twice the limit of pack mules). The larger animals could be fitted with 700 to 800 pounds and, upon occasion for short trips, upwards of 1,000 pounds. And, they could travel 40 to 50 miles a day consistently.

The ultimate test of the camels' usefulness and the deciding factor in the Army's decision to establish them as regulation mounts was the Wagon Road Survey of 1857, held in the form of an endurance run.

ITS SUCCESS convinced the Secretary of War to order the purchase of an additional 1,000 camels, an order that was in the process when the Civil War broke out and cut off the funding that had been reserved for the Camel Corps.

By the time the war was over, the railroad was beginning to do what the camels had been intended to do, and the army-issue camels became obsolete overnight.

JAMES HAMPTON plays Clemmons, the green, desk-bound young lieutenant from Washington who is saddled with the job of "camelizing" an entire cavalry unit of rugged but reluctant horse soldiers.

FRANK INN nuzzles animal starlet Valentine, but he warns the baby camel that minors are not allowed in saloons. The scene is from "HAWMPS."

Cashing in on the flu frenzy

by KURT BAER
(A book review)

If there is anything more contagious than the flu, it surely must be the uncontrollable lust to make a buck.

A classic case confronts us in a new book by Dr. Pascal James Imperato called "What to Do About the Flu," a $7.95 potboiler published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

Influenza has been much in the news recently because of plans being made for a nationwide swine flu inoculation program and the mysterious "Legionaires' disease" that has killed 26 persons in Philadelphia.

READING DR. Imperato's 125-page book, it is hard to believe that he and his publisher are not seeking to cash on the country's current flu frenzy.

The doctor's inside, authoritative tips on how to avoid and survive the flu amount to a collection of well-known home remedies, common sense and the advice that, if you are really sick, you should see your doctor.

Neither chicken soup, mustard plasters nor over-the-counter cold remedies will really cure the flu. The flu virus is too small to be screened by a face mask and so contagious that it is spread on tiny air-borne droplets. Fever, chills, cough, body aches and weakness are the most common early symptoms.

The disease's real danger lies in potential complications, most commonly pneumonia. And flu is especially dangerous among persons over age 65 and among the chronically ill, he tells us.

A CHAPTER IN the book on the anti-flu diet could have been lifted from almost any junior high school textbook. Do we really need Dr. Imperato to tell us that well-nourished people are less likely to get sick than the malnourished?

The book's chapter on swine flu is a handy-enough recap of the developments that have led us to plans for mass inoculations this fall. But it adds little if anything new about the disease.

Chapters on avoiding and surviving the flu include questions and answers that in some intances are almost too absurd to believe:

Q. If someone on an elevator is coughing a great deal, will I prevent flu by holding my breath or by getting off at the next floor?

A. If that person has the flu, you will reduce your chances of contracting it by getting off at the next floor. Holding your breath might be helpful for a few seconds, but prolonged breath holding is neither a safe nor efficient method of protecting yourself from the virus.

In another section, Dr. Imperato tells us not to worry about getting the flu from a toilet seat, or from eating peanuts from a bowl at a bar!

There is some useful medical information in "What to Do About the Flu." The explanation of how the flu virus manages to change

Alice Cooper's concept of hell put into album

Playback
by Tom Von Malder

Alice Cooper's idea of hell is a discotheque with a disc jockey devil and a personal punishment of having to dance forever.

Cooper, it would seem, hates to dance although he likes to tear around on stage a lot doing very weird things. Those weird things are what led Cooper to his new album, "Alice Cooper Goes To Hell" (Warner Bros.)

As Cooper sings in the opening, "Go To Hell," he has been condemned "for criminal acts and violence on the stage" and other, more personal vices.

The album is another inventive triumph for the perpetual showman even if the singing does not always go down easy. Cooper's lyrics are better than usual throughout and guitarist Dick Wagner's music is serviceable. Bob Ezrin's production touch is in evidence everywhere.

THE RESULT IS a likeable pastiche of rock, disco beats, self-parody, vaudeville, autobiography and ballads — similar in both concept and execution to last year's "Welcome To My Nightmare" concept album.

The standout tracks are the uptempo "Go To Hell" and "You Gotta Dance," the vaudevillian "Give the Kid a Break" (complete with corny puns) and the confessional "Guilty." The 1918 standard "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" is updated in a way one would never have anticipated.

Cooper has said "I Never Cry" is his best song ever, but his singing on the ballad is too bland for my taste. I prefer "Wake Me Gently" with the backing vocalists and the Beatle-ish tempo change in the middle.

"VIVA" (ATCO) is the first live Roxy Music album. It generally is mid-tempo effort, almost relaxing at times. The synthesizer background on "If There Is Something" is a good example.

The songs seem to have been selected only because the tapes ere available. This is evident by the album's having been recorded over a three-year span and the absence of the group's American hits "Love Is the Drug" and "The Thrill of It All."

Roxy Music is the British group who plays a startling mix of '50s rock, near-German heavy metal music and other musical styles of the past which seem to be an obsession with lead singer Bryan Ferry.

ONE OF THE eight selections, "Pyjamarama," has not appeared on any previous American release. The second side with two long songs and "Do the Strand" is the best.

Five of the live album's songs have their studio counterparts on the first two Roxy albums, "Roxy Music" and "For Your Pleasure," which Atco has just re-released. Both albums feature electronics wizard Eno, who left the group after the second album.

The best of "Roxy Music" is "Remake/Remodel," with its futuristic-sounding musical mix and car registration number chorus, the ballad "Bitters End," and "2 H.B." which is based on the Humphrey Bogart film "Casablanca."

"For Your Pleasure" has the original version of "Do the Strand" and the ballad "Strictly Confidential." It is a more melodic album over-all.

"BEST OF B.T.O. (Sor Far)" (Mercury) is a good sampling of the music of Bachmam-Turner Overdrive, the Canadian loud-rock group headed by Randy Bachman, formerly of the Guess Who.

The songs you'd expect are there, such as "Takin' Care of Business," "Hey You," "You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet" and "Lookin' Out For No. 1," but where are "Rock Is My Life and This Is My Song" and "Not Fragile?"

The album is the group's sixth.

Soundings:

BRYAN FERRY of Roxy Music has his third solo album, "Let's Stick Together," due out shortly. As usual he will do some oldies — Jimmy Reed's "Shame, Shame, Shame," the Everlys' "The Price of Love," Dizzy Gillespie's "You Go To My Head," the Beatles' "It's Only Love" and Gallagher & Lyle's "Heart On My Sleeve." Five of the songs will be Roxy standards, but it is unknown at this time whether they will be reissues or new recordings.

DAVID BRYON has been sacked by the other members of Uriah Heep. Could it be his solo career led to his demanding more of a say in the group?

In the area: THE JACKSONS, tonight through Sunday, Mill Run Theatre, Niles; FRANKIE VALLI & THE FOUR SEASONS, Saturday, Washington Park, Homewood; CHICAGO, tonight, Chicago Stadium.

Authors: TV image-making power in elections a myth

The book stall

THE UNSEEING EYE"
by THOMAS E. PATTERSON and ROBERT D. McCLURE
(Putnam, $7.95)

The conventional wisdom holds — and the intellectual community deplores — that television news plays a leading role in how the American people pick their Presidents.

Twaddle, say the authors of "The Unseeing Eye." The subtitle of their book is "The Myth of Television Power in Natonal Elections," and their thesis holds that the American public is smarter than either the politicians or the networks believe it to be.

The authors, professors of political science at Syracuse University in New York, charge that during presidential campaigns network newscasts fail to cover the candidates' qualifications to be president or their positions on the issues, while devoting what meager time is available to the horse race aspects of the campaign — even in a year such as 1972 when it, the horse race, was over before it began.

THE PROBLEM, according to the professors, goes back to basics. First, television looks for picture presentations—a candidate sampling a stomach-curdling mix of ethnic foods as he eats his way along the campaign trail offers better picture possibilities than the "talking heads" involved in a discussion of foreign policy or welfare alternatives.

Another problem cited is the limitation of television time to half-hour newscasts, in which information is imparted only as quickly as an anchorman or reporter can speak distinctly.

"More precisely," the authors write, "all the words spoken on a network evening newscast will fit, with room to spare, on the front page of a newspaper. When a large portion of that limited number of words is devoted to campaign hijinks, the networks in effect rule out the coverage of more relevant election information."

As for the candidates' images, the politicians and their campaign managers might take note of this comment by the authors:

"THE LONG AND short of images is that voters are not fools. Claims that the public's images can be manipulated by shallow television theatrics take the voters for dupes. The American voter judges presidential aspirants by politics, not entertainment. Voters arrive at their image of a candidate by judging where he stands politically and by assessing his significant accomplishments and failures . . .

"Television's image-making power is a myth."

"THE TRENTON PICKLE ORDINANCE"
by DICK HYMAN
Stephen Greene Press, $4.95

In Evanston, Ill., it is unlawful to change clothes in an automobile with the curtains drawn, except in case of fire. Presumedly, it is all right to change clothes with the curtains not drawn.

In Texas, when two trains meet at a railroad crossing, each is supposed to come to a full stop and not proceed until the other has gone.

These are just two of 600 delightful examples of "bonehead legislation" contained in this small, but funny book.

HYMAN FIRST became intrigued with dumb and outmoded laws 40 years ago when talking with a judge in Jasper, Ala. He soon had a newspaper feature, "It's the Law," which ran first in the New York Sunday Mirror and then in American Magazine until 1956.

So remember: In Atlanta, it is against the law to tie a giraffe to a telephone pole or a street lamp. In Los Angeles, you cannot have a hippopotamus in your possession. And you cannot drive a camel on the public highways of Nevada.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"TREASURE OF MATECUMBE" — First-rate action-adventure elements, a sturdy plot and an excellent cast combine for what just misses being a classic treasure hunt tale set in the Old South. The film loses some of its dramatic momentum due to its length (117 min.) but it's still fine, fun-fileld Disney fare for young and old. Cast includes Robert Foxworth, Joan Hackett, Peter Ustinov, Jane Wyatt and Vic Morrow.

"THE MAN WHO FELL TO EARTH" — Director Nicolas Roeg lavishes his dazzling bag of visual tricks on a dramatically disappointing science fiction film about an alien's unhappy stay on earth. Stunning performances by David Bowie and Candy Clark. (R)

"Silent Movie" — Mum's the word from Mel Brooks in this big-budget contemporary silent movie that unleashes a cascade of sight gags, pratfalls and broadly comic set pieces, linked to the connecting story of a minor studio's last-ditch efforts to avoid bankruptcy. Stars Mel Brooks, Marty Feldman and Dom Deluise. (PG).

"Murder By Death" — The legendary fictional exploits of every major detective hero receive a merciless ribbing from Neil Simon as they join forces on what must be the silliest case on record. The inspired idea never fulfills its initial promise and the momentum soon drags, but a first-rate cast injects Simon's one-liners with a good deal of style and genuine fun. Cast: Truman Capote, James Coco, Peter Falk, Alec Guiness, David Niven, Peter Sellers, Maggie Smith and Nancy Walker. (PG).

"Midway" — Spectacular naval and air battles enhanced by Sensurround for the delight of action fans but little in the way of involving drama or performances despite the all-star cast that includes Charlton Heston, Henry Fonda, James Coburn, Glenn Ford, Hal Holbrook, Robert Mitchum, Cliff Robertson and Robert Wagner (PG).

Dull dialog spoils drag racing in 'Gumball Rally'

by GENIE CAMPBELL
(A review)

About the only nice thing to say about the new Warner Bros. release "The Gumball Rally" is that certain scenes make you feel as though you're doing the actual driving.

But then one receives the same sensation driving bumper cars in an amusement park and, in addition, gets the full impact of the crashes. And that's really all this movie is about.

"The Gumball Rally" is an unofficial cross country drag race dreamed up by a dozen or so self-professed hot rodders who meet annually to chase one another from New York City to Long Beach, Calif.

MICHAEL SARRAZIN is the billed star of the gumballers who include a college professor, a gushy Italian lover, a mad motorcyclist, a bored housewife and two English gentlemen who look as though they're always ready to break for tea.

In attempt to beef up the plot, a bumbling, frustrated police detective is added, one who, no matter how hard he tries, no matter how many men he enlists, is unable to catch even a single one of them. Yea for the speedsters!

This movie, if you haven't already guessed, is pure but tedious fantasy. It's every driver's dream — running into storefronts, fire hydrants, oncoming traffic and even landing in the tops of trees and managing to come out not only in one piece but ready to go another round.

The characters, however, are stereotyped and the dialog insultingly simple and flat. "The Gumball Rally" runs out of gas too fast. It's rated PG.

'HAWMPS' a funny story but film doesn't keep pace

by DAVID DUGAS
A review

In 1856 the U.S. Cavalry experimented with camels, thinking they might outperform horses on the deserts of the American Southwest.

This historical incident inspired the movie "HAWMPS" (humps) from the folks previously responsible for the dog movie "Benji." It was a clever idea and it might have worked, even on the very broad, slapstick level it seeks, if producer-director Joe Camp had resisted the temptation to take every amusing situation and work it to death.

A CAMEL guzzling booze from a bottle is funny once but not six times.

James Hampton plays the newly commissioned lieutenant charged with introducing the camels to one of the cavalry's Texas outposts. The resident troops, eagerly expecting Arabian horses, include Christopher Connelly, Slim Pickens and Denvevr Pyle.

"HAWMPS" is meant to be a rollicking comedy but it stubbornly refuses to rollick. The pace, leisurely to start with, gradually slows to a dead halt. At 126 minutes it seems interminably long even without the dreadfully cute short, "Benji's Life Story," that is being shown with it.

HAVING MASTERED the art of camel riding, James Hampton (Lt. Clemmons) leads his tired but triumphant group of camel soldiers back to the fort.

"HAWMPS" is a Mulberry Square Productions release rated G.

Movies rediscover Gene Kelly

by VERNON SCOTT

The world has rediscovered Gene Kelly thanks to a pair of movies consisting of clips from ancient film musicals.

The older generation had forgotten how good he was. Youngsters had never seen him do his stuff on the big screen before.

But "That's Entertainment" and "That's Entertainment, Part 2" have revived the dancing man's career, bringing him legions of new fans.

Kelly's broad Irish grin reflects his feelings about his new-found popularity. He poured himself an evening cocktail behind the bar of his Beverly Hills home, one of the oldest in that silk lined-pocket of the rich. "A thousand letters a week have been coming in," he said.

"A LOT OF the mail is from kids who seem to think we made those musicals only a couple of years ago. And I'm surprised at the romantic notes I'm getting from girls who weren't even born when I made those pictures.

"The interesting thing about 'Entertainment 2' is that Fred Astaire and I did some new things as hosts of the picture. Audiences can see us then and now.

"I directed those sequences. Fred was wary about dancing again. I told him we wouldn't compete with ourselves of 20 years ago. We'd just make a few moves.

"I restricted our routines to simple steps and Fred trusted my judgment.

"THE ACCEPTANCE of the picture has convinced me that Fred and I are a fraternity of two. We keep in close touch with one another.

"But dancing is a young man's game. You have to be an athlete and train as hard as a boxer. So I've tried to do less and less work."

Kelly's inactivity over the past four years has been voluntary.

His wife, Jeanne, died of leukemia four years ago. The tragedy overwhelmed the star who devoted himself to providing all the love and security possible for their two children, Bridget, 12, and Tim, 14.

He chose to sacrifice his career rather than leave his children to make movies away from home.

KELLY EVEN refused the lead role opposite Liza Minnelli in "Cabaret." He couldn't bring himself to wrench Bridget and Tim from their surroundings and pack them off to Europe with him.

"It's easier to work now because the kids are recovering from their mother's death," he said. "I went to Europe for 10 days earlier this year to promote 'Entertainment 2.' They were secure enough for me to leave them."

The youngsters, in fact, are responsible for Kelly's return to movies with a costarring role with Evel Knievl in "Viva Knievel."

"I turned the part down when my agent called and asked if I was interested," Kelly said. "I'd planned to go to Europe to do another movie.

"I TOLD HIM to ask for a Steve McQueen-type salary to discourage any further offer. Then the kids heard about it.

"Tim has his own trail bike. He pleaded with me to take the picture. He said Knievel is a folk hero. Babe Ruth and Lindbergh were my heroes, but I learned Knievel is the man of the hour these days.

"Bridget gasped when I told her I'd refused the part. So I changed my attitude. I sent for the script and like it.

"I play a grease monkey pal of Knievel. Until now I've never played a real character role. I'm like the child star with a gap in his career. I don't have enough age in my face to play characters my own age. At the same time I'm too old to get the young girl in a movie.

"This picture is a lark. I don't dance. I don't shave. I don't wear makeup. And I don't get the girl. I'm having so much fun I can hardly wait to go to work in the morning."

There is a chance Kelly will star in a musical television special this year.

IT WILL give him the opportunity to don his amed dancing clothes once again — the gray flannels, moccasins, white socks and sweater.

"That outfit was my trademark," he said grining. "And for a very good reason. Astaire was always elegant. He danced as a rich man, faultlessly attired.

"I played poor guys, working stiffs and sailors. Even in 'An American in Paris' I was a guy getting along on the GI bill.

"The television show will give me an opportunity to bring joy to people. That's all I really want to do.

"Come to think of it, that's what I've been working at in movies since I made 'For Me And My Gal' back in 1942. And when I see the reaction to 'Entertainment 2,' it helps me believe I've succeeded in some small way."

TWO FINE LADIES of Windsor, Mrs. Ford (Elaine LeTraunik, Schaumburg) and Mrs. Page (Sandra Rode, Elk Grove) get word of Sir John Falstaff's romantic interest in them, which triggers retaliation by their husbands. Scene is from "The Merry Wives of Windsor" being staged tonight, Saturday and next weekend by Friends of the Schaumburg Library. See Billboard.

Restaurant brings outdoors inside

The Greenhouse in Palatine offers what most suburban restaurants lack: atmosphere. That, along with good service and food, makes the restaurant at 1200 W. Northwest Hwy., a pleasant place to dine.

The restaurant, as the name implies, is abundant with greenery hanging from wooden rafters. Skylights are reminiscent of the famous French Quarter restaurants in New Orleans and give diners the feeling of a courtyard, although the Greenhouse is completely indoors. Fountains add to the charm and large spaces between tables and a low noise level are pluses.

ON A RECENT Saturday night we started with baked shrimp a la Greenhouse, a tasty dish at $3.75, and French onion soup, $1.75 which comes in a crock with plenty of cheese. Not quite hungry enough for the house's special Grecian salad, we asked our waitress for a side order of Feta cheese and anchovies which she promptly brought to the table at a charge of $2.

Egg rolls, sauteed mushrooms, oysters and herring are also available as appetizers.

The mostly American menu includes a basic variety of dishes from seafood and beef to chicken and ribs. The fact that too few creative items are offered was our only disappointment.

Each entree comes with a salad, more than the usual, with two kinds of lettuce, tomatoes, chopped eggs, onion and croutons. The house dressing was nondescript but the Roquefort delicious. Entrees also come with a choice of baked, fried or stuffed baked potatoes. We tried the twice-baked potatoes, which would have been delicious except they were slightly overdone.

WE ORDERED THE beachcomber's skillet, $8.95, and the tournedos beaugency, $9.25, both specialties of the house. The red snapper with a special butter sauce and roast duckling with apricot sauce are also recommended by the management.

The beachcomber, which comes in a skillet, was a large portion of seafood with shrimp, crabmeat, scallops and sole in a sauce tasting like the glazed banana and pineapple that are included. The sauce was tasty but not too sweet. Spanish rice is also served in the skillet.

The tournedos were cooked rare as ordered and more than an ample portion. An artichoke bottom filled with an excellent bernaise sauce made with real butter and just the right amount of tarragon were tasty additions.

THE DESSERT MENU includes strawberries grand marnier at $2.50 and cheesecake at $1.50 but, being too full, we ended dinner with coffee. Service was excellent throughout the meal with water glasses and the roll basket refilled without having to ask. Dishes were also cleared away promptly.

The Greenhouse is open for lunch and offers a Sunday brunch. Attire is casual until 5 p.m. when jackets are required for men. The restaurant also has a lounge with entertainment in the evenings, a nice place to enjoy an after-dinner drink.

The Gay '90s melodrama with music will feature Ken Freehill and Pam Plant of Schaumburg; Ken Parker and Lonnie Gill, Elgin; Jodi Mitchell, Hoffman Estates; Judi Cwick and Sandy Irvin, Palatine; Marcie Davis, Lake Zurich; and John McGrath, Mount Prospect.

Scheduled to open Friday, Sept. 3, the show will be directed by Lary Etten, Mount Prospect. Nina Leone, Des Plaines, and Lisa Gibson, Oak Park, are technical directors. "Dirty Work" will be staged at Limelight Theatre, 1165 Tower Rd., Schaumburg.

Information on tickets may be obtained by calling 882-0163 or 884-0137.

Ravinia hosts the Joffrey

Upbeat ballet taking over

by LYNN ASINOF
A review

Despite the name, it is unlikely anyone would mistake the City Center Joffrey Ballet for a classical ballet company.

Just check out the programs scheduled this week at Ravinia. Each is a dance sampler, providing a little jazz, a taste of modern, some good old-fashioned gymnastics and just a touch of the classical.

Each year the company, now 20 years old, moves further from the tradition of toe shoes and more towards the upbeat. Those who crave the classical usually will only find one piece in each program that features pirouettes and pointe work.

THIS MIX IS a good choice for the dancers, who often appear long on energy but short on technique. And apparently it is a good choice for the Chicago audience, which provides sold-out crowds for the Joffrey's twice-yearly dance potpourri.

For this visit, the Joffrey has brought several revivals from the '50s and '60s, as well as some favorites well known to Chicago audiences.

One of the loveliest offerings this trip is "Secret Places," choreographed by the Joffrey's Gerald Arpino to the Mozart piano concerto which is best known as the theme to "Elvira Madigan."

The piece is a love duet danced with fluidity and tenderness by Dermot Burke and Lisa Bradley, who recently returned to the Joffrey fold. It is one of the more subtle ballets performed by the troupe.

BRADLEY HAS sustaining strength, a supple back and willowy arms which allow her to move effortlessly though lifts and poses.

The dramatic "Feast of Ashes" choreographed by Alvin Ailey shows Bradley's versatility. It becomes a vehicle for her and Jan Hanniford, who dances the role of her dominating mother. Both project the feeling of Spanish religious severity and dogma, providing an exciting dramatic edge.

"Deuce Coupe II," which has already become a Joffrey classic, is typical of the new works being done by the company. Choreographed by Twyla Tharp to Beach Boys music, the piece combines ballet and 1960's rock 'n roll.

WITH EACH YEAR, the piece gains depth, and should be seen more than once because it moves so quickly. A distant cousin of "Deuce Coupe II" is "N.Y. Export: Op. Jazz," a 1958 Jerome Robbins ballet of the beat generation. While the repetitious piece captures the anger and alienation of the '50s, it relies too much on ponytails and fingersnapping to carry it through five variations.

Both pieces suffer from the company's general lack of precision, with dancers appearing to move at random rather than in unison. When the Joffrey learns timing, the company will look 100 per cent better.

"REFLECTIONS" a lyrical Arpino ballet, shows the company at its best. The women are light, fast and airy, but the men looked best while partnering their women.

The dancers appeared a bit unsure opening night but pulled together for an improved performance Wednesday. Programs continue through Sunday, with ticket information available by calling either ST 2-9696 or 432-1236.

"REMEMBRANCES," performed here by Francesca Corkle and Paul Sutherland, is one of 12 pieces being performed by the City Center Joffrey Ballet during its weeklong visit to Ravinia.

Flu book . . .

its form every year so as to be nearly impossible to eradicate is easy to understand. A capsule history of flu and a description of flu trackers makes interesting, if sometimes trivial, reading.

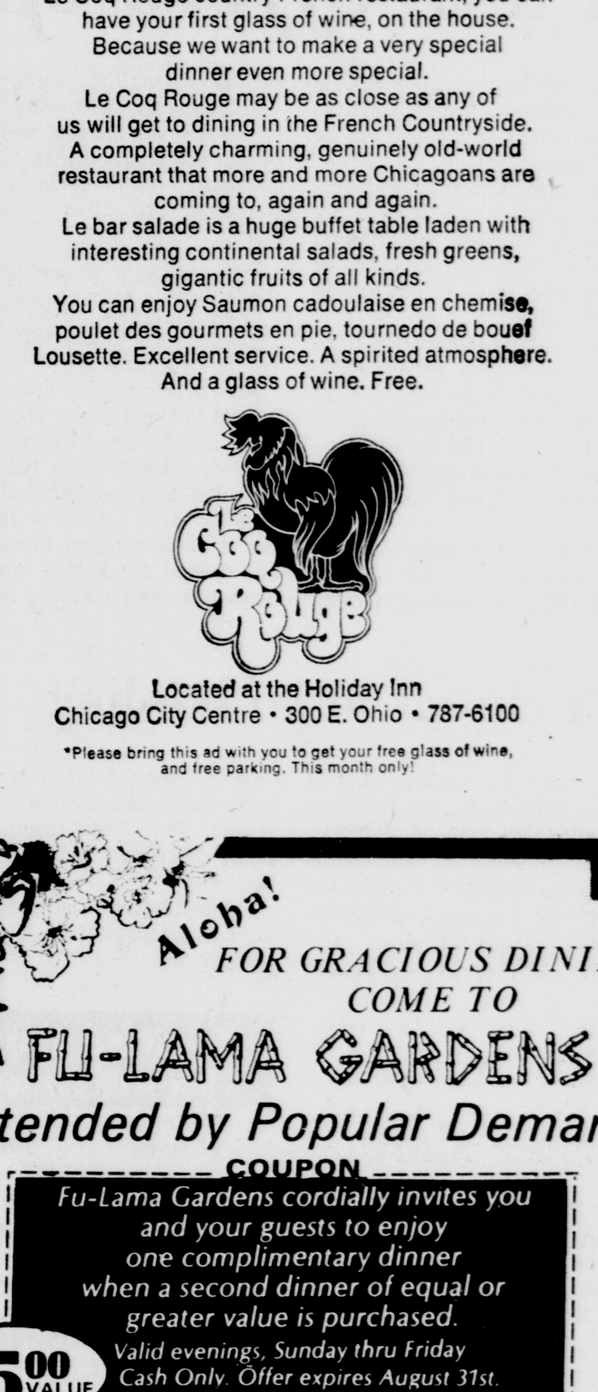

THE STORY OF the 1918-19 flu pandemic that scientists believe was caused by a swine flu-like virus includes an unsettling account of mass arrests in New York and Chicago for coughing or sneezing in public.

Dr. Imperato endorses, tnough not unequivocally, taking Vitamin C to help prevent or cure the flu. But he really gives out few "secrets" on how to battle the influenza bug, maybe because there are not any secrets to tell.

Go to bed, keep warm, drink liquids, take aspirin, call the doctor and do not get up until your fever is down pretty much says it all.

TO AVOID THE flu, common sense and Dr. Imperato tell you to avoid crowds, wash your hands and not let yourself get run down.

Dr. Imperato is first deputy commissioner of health for New York City and the author of six other books. As for buying "What to Do About the Flu," you're better off waiting for the movie. Unless, of course, it comes out during flu season, in which case the good doctor advises, "skip the movies unless you're dying to see the film."

'Mind With the Dirty Man'

Good or bad the tickets sell

If you enjoy JOEY BISHOP on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show" you'll be sure to like him in THE MIND WITH THE DIRTY MAN" now at the DRURY LANE THEATRE in Water Tower Place.

He doesn't change. It's Joey Bishop playing Joey Bishop, which doesn't matter much anyhow considering this adult rated comedy isn't worth fretting over.

Hardly the expected, sophisticated fare for a posh, Michigan Avenue theater, the box office, no doubt, will still be working overtime for this Jules Tasca play is just raunchy enough to be the talk of the town.

Arlington Park Theatre sold out three different times with "Dirty Man" featuring Don Knotts in the leading role. Knotts, I must admit, looked more the part of the nervous, uptight member of a movie review board faced with keeping his own son's porno film out of the small, backward community.

Bishop looks as though he'd rather be selling the movie than censoring it. Yet people who are there to see him flash open his bathrobe and parade in his boxer shorts will not be disappointed.

More attuned to their roles, however, are his own son, LARRY BISHOP, who, as the son in the play, returns home to purposely harass the small-town hypocrites, and BONNIE SUE ARP who bubbles over as his porno-queen wife.

PATRICIA FRASER, who happens to reside in Hoffman Estates, is excellent as Bishop's wife — trying to be satisfied with her dutiful lot in life while at the same time fishing for a bit more excitement in supporting her son.

Unfortunately the talents of director George Keathley, who was just named resident director of Drury Lane/Water Tower Place, go almost unnoticed. He needs and deserves much greater challenges, though it does show that Keathley has tried to update the dialog and revamp the play to suit Bishop.

As Bishop says once in this comedy, "There's a lot more to this business than smiling on the 'Tonight Show.' "

Night out

by Genie Campbell

"The Mind With the Dirty Man" continues through Sept. 12.

RONEE BLAKLEY, An Academy Award nominee for the film "Nashville," will perform at HARRY HOPE'S in Cary tonight and Saturday. In the movie Miss Blakley plays Barbara Jean, Nashville's beautiful, fragile country and western princess who, as the film progresses and her career skyrockets, sinks deeper and deeper into emotional panic. She wrote the music and lyrics for five of the songs in "Nashville."

DPTG offers special rate

Six shows for the price of four is the offer Des Plaines Theatre Guild is making to patrons who subscribe for the 1976-77 season by Sept. 1.

A double presentation in May expands the season from five to six plays, and by ordering subscriptions now a 25 per cent savings over the single admission price at the box office can be realized.

All plays will be offered for three weekends, and Sunday performances have been added to the runs of each show. Group sales and benefit shows are also offered to clubs and organizations desiring to plan theater parties for entertainment and fund-raising purposes.

The season opens in September with nine performances of the Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein musical "Show Boat," playing Sept. 10-26.

In November the comedy "A Majority of One" will be presented, followed by the courtroom drama "The Night of January 16th" in January and a comedy, "The Silver Whislte," in March.

THE DOUBLE FEATURE in May will be "The Real Inspector Hound" and "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch," both comedies.

Season subscription orders may be mailed to Des Plaines Theatre Guild, P. O. Box 84, Des Plaines, 60017. If a printed order form is not handy, a note should be included stating preference for first, second or third weekend of each run, and whether tickets are desired for Friday, Saturday or Sunday. Price for Friday and Sunday evening series is $13.50, Saturday evening, $15.

After Sept. 1, single admission prices will be $3.50 for Friday and Sunday and $4 for Saturday.

Rehearsals for the September play, "Show Boat," are under direction of Raoul Johnson of Schaumburg, with Betty Myers, Mount Prospect, as choral director and John Van Hook, Schaumburg, orchestra director.

The season's productions will be staged in Guild Playhouse, 620 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Further information is available at the box office, 296-1211, noon to 8 p.m. daily.

Area chorus to go bowling

A scotch doubles bowling night is planned by Hoffman Hallmark Chorus for Saturday at 8:30 at Hoffman Lanes, Hoffman Estates. The chorus invites those interested to join the group for four lines of bowling plus dinner, all for $15 per couple.

This is a benefit event to help provide equipment for the two major concerts performed by the group each season. The chorus draws from the entire Northwest suburbs for membership.

Further information on the bowling night is available from Joan Morris, 529-3827.

Artists invited to enter show

Artists may still enter their work in the Buffalo Grove Festival of Fine Arts to be held Sept. 5 on the Village Green at Buffalo Grove Village Hall, Raupp Boulevard and Lake Cook Road.

Art will be judged in three categories — watercolors, acrylics and oils; graphics; and drawings. Awards will be given by the Festival committee.

Hours of the show are from noon to 6 p.m. Ted Uskali Jr., 537-5280, may be called for registration.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Tension most likely cause of headaches

I am in good general health except for one problem. In the past six to nine months I have been plagued with headaches. Their frequency and intensity have increased to where I have at least one headache per day. These are not throbbing headaches, but seem like a great deal of pressure over the entire head and behind my eyes. Also the sides and back of my neck are sore when I have these headaches.

I have tried various brands of aspirins and other pain relievers to no avail. I haven't been able to find any consistent reasons for this pain, such as tension, undereating, allergies, etc. However, I sometimes get a brief period of relief shortly after eating.

I stopped taking birth control pills, but this did not seem to be causing the problem.

Could you please give me your opinions on the reasons for my headaches? If you feel there is a definite need to see a doctor, would it be advisable to first see an M.D., a neurologist, or some other specialist?

Headache is man's most common pain. About 90 per cent of all people experience a headache from time to time. Headaches can be caused by an acute illness as with a sinus infection or even with any febrile illness. Aside from these, most headaches are caused by tension associated wtih the emotional stress of living. Since we haven't found any good ways to live and not have any emotional stress, it is likely that headaches will continue to be a part of life for most people at one time or another — at least during periods of stress.

There is at least a 90 per cent chance that your headache is in the anxiety-depression type group, as are most headaches. The fact that you have not gotten relief from aspirin or other pain relieving medicines is a strong point in favor of this opinion. The generalized location with the discomfort you feel at the base of the head or back of the neck is also consistent with this type of headache.

THOSE HEADACHES are a warning from your psychic that you are not tolerating the stresses and strains of your own life situations. Examine your life for tensions and conflicts and see if you can make life a little easier for yourself. Taking tranquilizers will not really help with those headaches, but resolution of the anxiety provoking stresses or factors causing depression may really help a great deal.

You do not have migraine headaches. The location and symptoms are not indicative of that at all. I would recommend that you try to get some relaxation away from the more intense parts of your life. A vacation may be in order.

When the headache strikes, try some heat to the back of the neck and some gentle massage. Rest with a heating pad under the back of the head and neck area. Then move your head gently in all directions and try to loosen up your muscles. Massage gently the muscles over the side of your head.

Anyone who has recurrent headaches should see a doctor and a good place for you to start is with your family doctor. Let him decide if you really need to see anyone else or not. Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-9, Headache: Man's Most Common Pain. Others who want information on headaches can obtain this issue by sending a long, stamped self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Tiger's milk an aid, not a diet substitute

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to ask about using tiger's milk to help lose weight. Can I drink it three times a day to curb my appetite — and then rely on one good meal a day? — Mrs. J. A. Koenig

Tiger's milk is a gread adjunct in dieting — but that's all it is, an adjunct and not a substitute. Frankly, anyone with a serious weight problem ought not to create their own diet. They need help from either a doctor or a nutritionist. Too many people have damaged their health by going on freaky diets. What's more, they didn't succeed in any long-range weight reduction. One can easily lose on a simple practice of cutting away all visible fat on meats, cutting out sauces, moving from two pieces of toast to one, and so on. Just this would cut enough calories to knock off 10 pounds in a year. On this sort of basis, tiger's milk makes sense. On any crash couse, it's a serious error.

Dear Dorothy: Have tried various polishes on the chrome fixtures in the bathroom, but the stains won't come off. Any home remedy in your file that might work? — Maureen Roche.

This is a maybe. Tried a paste of cream of tartar and three per cent hydrogen peroxide on a stained chrome faucet. It didn't work the first time, so tried again. This time, I was called away and did not get to finish the wiping off until the next morning. The faucet looked brand-new.

Dear Dorothy: Speed does wonders. Putting chlorine bleach in the washer, some fell on a blue smock. Grabbed it and put it in a pan of water with a tiny bit of bleach in it. Within five minutes, the smock was its original color and no spots. — Joy Fallon

Cathleen Campbell-Ronald Gjerde

A romance at Illinois State University culminated in marriage July 24 for Cathleen L. Campbell of Hoffman Estates and Ronald L. Gjerde of Lisbon, Ill. They are making their home in Springfield where the groom is on the Republican legislative staff for the Illinois State Legislature.

Cathleen, daughter of the Talmage G. Campbells, is a graduate of Conant High and now a junior at Illinois State. Ronald, an Illinois State graduate, is the son of the Harold Gjerdes of Newark, Ill.

They were married at 3:30 p.m. in the Church of the Cross, United Presbyterian, in Hoffman Estates. A reception followed in the church fellowship hall and later there was a buffet and dancing at the Governor's Mansion, Barrington Square.

The couple honeymooned at the Playboy Club in Lake Geneva.

FOR THEIR double ring rites Cathleen chose her sister, Connie, as maid of honor and Ronald chose Greg Glenn, Minooka, Ill., as best man.

Bridesmaids were Karen Johnson, DeKalb, Sue Tittle, Bloomington, and Sheila Campbell, the bride's sister-in-law from Homewood, Ala. Junior bridesmaids were the couple's sisters, Cindy Campbell and Linda Gjerde.

The girls were gowned in blue, green and yellow dotted swiss and carried matching colored bouquets.

The bride wore white organza and lace and carried blue, green and yellow carnations with white daisies.

Serving as groomsmen were Jeff Anderson, Hinsdale, Greg Vogen, Newark, and the groom's brother, Terry of Morris, Ill. The couple's brothers, Blair Campbell and Richard Gjerde, ushered.

Also in the wedding party was the groom's nephew, Eric Gjerde of Morris, who served as ring bearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald L. Gjerde

Karen Bosworth-Richard McCoy

Although Richard W. McCoy and his family formerly lived in Arlington Heights, he did not meet his bride, Karen C. Boswoth of Arlington Heights, until after his parents, the Wallace McCoys, moved to McLean, Va. He returned to the area to work and met Karen through church and family contacts.

Both she and her bridegroom have been active in the theater group at St. James Catholic Church where they were married July 25 at 4 p.m.

Karen is the daughter of the Ward Bosworths. A graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High and from the University of Illinois in '75, she teaches at the Early Leaning Center, Buffalo Grove.

Richard graduated from Arlington High and from the U of I in '72 and is an engineer with International Harvester, Schaumburg.

FOUR ATTENDANTS preceded Karen down the aisle for the double ring ceremony. Mary Hoppe, Chicago, was maid of honor; the groom's sister, Sue, Nora Elegreet of Morton Grove and Sandy Miller, Arlington Heights, were bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in aqua knit and carried yellow carnations, purple statice and baby's breath. Karen's gown was of white organza embroidered in a lily of the valley motif of lace. Her chapel-length veil and cap were also edged in the lace, and her bouquet was of phalaenopsis and stephanotis.

Best man was the groom's brother, Pat of Itasca, and groomsmen included the couple's brothers, Ken Bosworth, Arlington Heights, and Ken McCoy, Hinsdale, along with Jim Sobolewski, Alameda, Calif.

Two hundred twenty guests greeted the newlyweds at a reception at the Starlight Inn, Schiller Park. The couple honeymooned in Jamaica and are living in Lake Zurich.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCoy

Mr. and Mrs. William Crimmins

Linda Jean Anstett-William Crimmins

Six bridal attendants gowned in rainbow shades of dotted swiss preceded Linda Jean Anstett down the aisle of Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights, for her marriage July 25 to William Crimmins.

Linda, daughter of the Carl J. Anstetts of Arlington Heights, and her bridegroom met while attending college in Winona, Minn., and had several school friends in their wedding party.

Bill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Crimmins of Elmwood Park.

Linda's maid of honor was her sister, Cheryl, who wore a yellow dotted swiss gown and white picture hat and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations with baby's breath. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Maureen, who wore an apricot ensemble; the bride's sister-in-law, Maria Anstett, Canton, Ill., who wore aqua; Karen Jersey, Oak Park, in pink; Sandy Shaft, Green Bay, in green; and another sister of the bride, Nancy, in blue.

THE BRIDE'S gown was of chiffon with lace and seed pearl trim, and with it she wore a fingertip veil and Camelot headpiece. White roses, stephanotis and ivy made up her bouquet.

Bill's fraternity brothers from Chicago were his attendants, Tony Gilski as best man and Mike Mulvihill, Garry Howard, Angelo Rhinchuiso, Don Figulio and Mike Evans as groomsmen.

Following the afternoon ceremony there was a dinner reception with dancing at Nordic Hills Country Club. The newlyweds then left for a week at a resort in Lake of the Ozarks and are now residing in Chicago.

Linda is a nurse at Swedish Covenant Hospital, Chicago. Her husband is attending Kent School of Law and working for an attorney in Chicago.

After graduating from Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Linda attended St. Theresa College in Winona while Bill was a student nearby at St. Mary's College. He earned a degree, but she left college to study radiology at Northwest Community Hospital and graduated there just before her wedding.

Ask Andy

Eagle honored as national bird

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to John Harvey, 9, of Montoursville, Pa., for his question:

WHAT IS OUR NATIONAL BIRD?

The bald eagle did not reach his status as our national emblem without some dissension. Benjamin Franklin openly opposed the choice, campaigning instead for the wild turkey. Many, including the designer of the Great Seal of the United States, considered the golden eagle more appropriate. But the bald eagle reigned supreme in the end, and probably among the many reasons are that this majestic bird is native only to North America, is attached to its home and faithful to his mate. What's more, he devotes more care to the education of his young than any other bird in our skies.

The bald eagle is truly a monarch — his regal features include a snowy white feathered head, sharp, piercing eyes, magnificient seven-foot wingspan and black, razor-sharp talons. He soars hour after hour in graceful undisturbed flight, riding on the wind currents as high as 10,000 feet above the earth. His keen eyes have been known to spot prey three miles away.

Although the bald eagle was once abundant across the continental United States and parts of Canada and Alaska, his numbers have been diminished severely. Victim of egg collectors, trophy hunters, poisoned bait and chemical pesticides, as well as bullets from irate farmers and ranches, the bald eagle finally won some protection in 1940 when Congress passed the Bald Eagle Protection Act. This has helped, but the long-lasting effects of DDT, which found its way into food, reduced the number of eggs hatched. Today the bald eagle is rare except in Florida, Alaska and Canada.

The bald eagle's 30 year life span begins as a helpless and homely little chick. His first home is a nest or eyrie, built in the top of a towering evergreen tree close to water. Made of branches, pine needles, moss and assorted objects, the nest is used year after year by the parents who will add more nesting materials to the lofty incubator each year. The expansions account for the huge nests that have been discovered — some weighing as much as one ton.

Both parents constantly hunt for the chick, who for a short time has the food popped into his mouth. Soon, however, school days begin, and the parents show the youngster how to break food into bite-size portions, and how to hop up and down and flap his wings. Sometime during his third month of life, the eaglet learns to fly. But until he masters the skills of hunting — at about five months — he remains with his parents.

Bald eagles mate for life when they are about 4 or 5 years old. Their courtship flight is a spectcular display of aerial acrobatics. The male repeatedly soars upward, then dives, until the female joins him. Together they fly higher and higher in ever smaller circles, until finally they lock talons in midair. Thus joined, they spin through the sky like swiftly somersaulting pinwheels.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Shawn Steinbach, 12, of Chariton, Iowa, for his question:

WHAT IS A MAN-MADE DIAMOND?

We all know about diamonds — how hard they are, how beautiful they are and how prized they are as gems. But many of Andy's readers may not know that diamonds also work for a living. They have many industrial uses that range from exploring for mineral deposits in the tip of a drill to the tiny needle that is used in many record players. Diamonds used in industry are called industrial diamonds, and they are the gems that are imperfectly formed or flawed!

Since the demand for industrial diamonds is greater than the available supply, the only solution was to try to create diamonds. In February, 1955, a team of scientists at the General Electric Research Laboratory announced that they had produced man-made diamonds by compressing graphite under super high pressures and temperature. Of course, the process is much more involved than just using pressure and heat. But scientists established that it could be done, and today several companies manufacture industrial diamonds.

TV pilots known to switch networks

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Old television pilots never die and sometimes they don't fade away, either.

As a matter of fact, they even have been known to turn up at a competing network.

That's what may happen next year with "Wonder Woman." "Wonder Woman" did well in the ratings both times it ran as an ABC movie, but ABC already has another wonder woman — and she's Bionic. The network isn't likely to trade a Bionic bird in the hand for a wonder-bird who hasn't proved herself in series form. Two superwomen seems superfluous.

"THAT'S THE thinking at NBC, where executives are said to be considering picking up the option of "Wonder Woman" if ABC lets it drop this fall. It could be ready for second season slot, to replace a show with not-so-wonderful ratings.

ABC may have one too many wonderful women, but it still is looking for a good Western and the network hasn't given up on a couple of its past efforts.

Last season ABC aired a TV movie called "The Macahans," announced as a pilot for a possible Western series. It was based on the movie, "How the West Was Won." Now ABC has announced it will air a limited series of three 2-hour television movies called "How The West Was Won," based on "The Macahans."

By any name it will still star James Arness and Eva Marie Saint.

THE YOUNG Pioneers," another Western pilot that failed to make the ABC fall schedule Christmas movie about the teenaged couple homesteading in the Dakota Territory in the 1870s.

ABC may have niggling worries about Westerns, but this fall it'll be wrinkling its brows all the way to the bank.

In the results from spring ratings "sweeps," ABC came out the big winner, confirming its strong rating position this year and influencing the rate card it will present in selling commercial time.

Keep brain on during play

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Here is a hand that may well have decided the 1950 Vanderbilt Cup competition.

At both tables the queen of diamonds was led against the seven-club contract. One declarer called for the ace of diamonds, without any thought. Then he thought for several minutes before discarding his jack of spades. Several minutes later he was one down.

The other declarer did his thinking before playing from dummy and finally called for a low diamond. He ruffed, cashed the ace of spades to see what happened, cashed the ace of hearts for a second look at possibilities and then played the king of spades. When that dropped the queen he led to dummy's ace of clubs, discarded his four of hearts on the ace of diamonds, came back to his hand with a heart, drew trumps and claimed his grand slam.

This grand slam swing decided a first-round match. The lucky winners then went on to win the tournament.

Harper offers classes in astronomy, paleontology

Two new science courses are being offered at Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, this fall.

Introductory Astronomy will provide a descriptive account of stars, comets, meteors, the solar system and the universe. Historical background, tools of the astronomer, extraterrestial life and UFO's also will be covered within the course. There are no prerequisites for the three-credit course. Both evening and day sections will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The astronomy course will satisfy general education science requirements at most colleges and universities.

Paleontology, Geology 202, will describe ancient life and its evolution to the present time. Fossils and their living counterparts will be studied at a nontechnical level, but students in the course should have background in biology and earth science. This is a four-credit course that stresses laboratory and field techniques.

Information on both courses may be obtained by calling 397-3000, ext. 375. Registration for the fall semester is this week ,with classes beginning Aug. 23.

Review for secretaries

Harper College is offering a review course for secretaries who are planning to take the certified professional secretary examination in May.

Classes will be held from 7 to 8:50 p.m. on Tuesdays, Aug. 24, through Dec. 7, on the campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

Tuition is $30 per semester for residents of the Harper district and $70.56 for those out of district.

For information, call 397-3000, ext. 592.

Adult courses set

Harper College will offer several adult basic education courses at the Willow Park Center in Wheeling during the fall semester.

Basic skills classes in reading, math and English for persons wishing to improve their skills in these areas will be held from 12:30 to 3 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

All classes are free and provide individual instructions to students. Free tutoring services are also provided for all students in each of the subject areas.

For information visit or call the Willow Park Center at Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue, Wheeling, 541-5500.

Walgreen donation

The food service program is a two-gram at Harper College, Palatine, has been named the recipient of a $1,000 donation from the Walgreen Co.

The money will be used for three $200 scholarships, one $100 scholarship, with the remainder to be used for audio-visual aids.

The food service progra mis a two-year career program leading to an associate in applied science degree.

Dr. Pesch to speak to industrial nurses

Dr. Roger N. Pesch, psychiatrist and medical director of Marionjoy Rehabilitation Hospital, Wheaton, will be guest speaker at a Sept. 7 dinner meeting of the Suburban Association of Industrial Nurses.

Topic of the meeting is "What is pain and how can it be treated?" It will be at the Nordic Hills Country Club in Itasca. For reservations and information call Arlene Spizzeri, 562-7100 ext. 399.

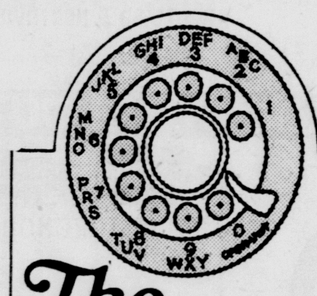

50th anniversary for Epsilon Eta Phi

Epsilon Eta Phi, a national fraternity for women in business administration, is contacting members and former members to invite them to the 50th anniversary celebration, to be held April 30, 1977, at the Continental Plaza in Chicago.

Members interested in attending should write to EPSIES, P.O. Box 64, Prospect Heights, Ill., 60070.

Dr. Mutterperl at Grant

Dr. Robert E. Mutterperl, a nephrologist and Arlington Heights resident, recently joined the medical staff of Grant Hospital in Chicago.

Sting launches playoff action tonight

Toronto visits Chicago for soccer competition

by DON FRISKE

Throughout the long summer, a professional sports team in Chicago has been laboring to bring a championship to a city where such things have been forgotten.

But, in the shuffle of numerous other big league attractions in the big city, the efforts of the Chicago Sting have often been overlooked by both the press and the fans.

Tonight, beneath the lights of Soldier Field, the Sting will play the Toronto Metros-Croatia in the quarterfinals of the North American Soccer League playoffs.

Bill Foulkes

Mervyn Cawston

It will be the second step in the Sting's drive for the title. The initial victory came when Chicago won first place in the Northern Division of the NASL.

The second-place team in that race is the outfit the Sting play tonight. Game time is 8 p.m.

In their two previous contests, the Sting and the Metros-Croatia have split. Both games have been shutouts.

But now, every game could be the last of the season for those teams remaining in the championship playoffs, which are a single-elimination affair.

This type of arrangement is most suited for the style of play used by the Metros-Croatia. They like to play a conservative game, slowing down the opponents and relying on one or two goals to win a game.

Because of this, Toronto finished second in the division behind the Sting. Both teams finished the season with a 15-9 record, the difference being bonus points.

The Sting had 42 bonus points while the Metros-Croatia collected only 33. Chicago scored 14 more goals throughout the season.

Every goal (with a maximum of three) in each game counts as a bonus point, whether the team wins or loses.

"We murdered them on bonus points," said Bill Foulkes, Sting coach. "We have an all-out scoring attack while Toronto relies on quick breaks from the defense. This is the main difference between us.

"This is the tactical thing we must overcome and I think we have the players to do it."

Foulkes said the Sting has been working on a different style of play during the past week in preparation for the game. The new approach centers around filling holes at mid-field and concentrating on quick breaks.

"We have to approach this game more cautiously, but we will still be playing an attacking game," Foulkes added. "Toronto knows how to slow down a game, but we will not let them do that to us."

Foulkes plans on pressuring Toronto for the entire 90 minutes. His tactic of the all-out attack has resulted in the opponents scoring goals because the defense has been left thin.

"We'll be playing this game slightly different," Foulkes said. "We're confident, but not arrogant. The players know the long-term effect of winning this game."

Sting goalkeeper Mervyn Cawston may be the player with the most on his mind. In a single elimination situation, much of the balance rests with the goalies.

"I do feel a little extra pressure and I know the game is going to be close," Cawston said. "A one-goal game wouldn't surprise me."

During the season, Cawston allowed an average of only 1.20 goals per game while recording six shutouts. He said he feels the pivotal game for him was the Sting victory over the New York Cosmos, 2-1, in New York on May 2.

"That game got my confidence up. But I'm not really worried about tonight's game," Cawston said. "If everyone plays as they can, there will only be one result."

Cawston fully realizes that any mistake he makes could turn into a sour result for the Sting. Eusabio, a star forward for Toronto, will be closely watched by Cawston.

One major key to the game is that Toronto has played two games already this week and Foulkes expects to see some signs of fatigue.

Another factor is the home advantage for the Sting. They have now won 10 straight games at Soldier Field.

"Our players believe they are invincible at home and they show it," Foulkes said.

Tonight's game will be broadcast over WWMM-FM (92.7) with coverage beginning at 7:30. For those planning to attend the game, it might be helpful to leave a little early because of the Lakefront Festival.

A winner (at last) in Chicago!

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

The patient Chicago sports fan has been rewarded with a winner in, of all things, professional soccer.

It's a very fitting slap at the established sports franchises, and I think it's great in this city where ineptitude on the field is the rule.

It's going to be interesting to see what kind of crowd the Chicago Sting draws to its North American Soccer League playoff game tonight in Soldier Field.

Those fans who are tired of "next years" from the Cubs and Bears, dropped flyballs from the White Sox, bickering from the Bulls and higher prices from the Black Hawks should find this Sting success so very refreshing.

And if you've paid your hard-earned dollar to watch Chicago's losers, you should reward an operation that at least has given this city a winner.

The Sting has helped put some words back into the Chicago sports vocabulary that had lost their meaning — words like "division title" and "playoff."

It gets a little tiring to build up hope at the beginning of every season and then watch the hapless Chicago team slumber into that familiar pattern of "wait until next year."

Wouldn't it be great if the Chicago fans suddenly turned on the established franchises and made soccer the "in" sport? It would be their way of saying "thanks" for coming into town and at least giving this city something to talk about.

People say they don't understand the sport of soccer. I'd be the first to admit I don't fully comprehend all the tactical subtleties, but the overall picture is not that complex. It is essentially a simple game.

The object of soccer — perhaps a little obscured by the defensive tendencies of the 1960s — is to score more goals than the opposition. It demands an expertise in the manipulation of a round ball. Now is that so difficult?

Soccer appears perfectly tailored for the new American sports fan, the developing American appetite for faster, more fluid spectator sports. Soccer has speed, non-stop action, roughness, beauty, finesse, a more spread-out and discernible pattern of play.

A soccer player using his head and his feet can do to that ball what a Harlem Globetrotter does with a basketball.

Introduced in this country around 1830, soccer's misfortune appears to have been that after the Civil War, when the transplanted game was just beginning to develop in an organized way, it ran into something that used to be known as "Harvard indifference."

Baseball was becoming the passion then, basketball was about to be invented, and, most significantly, college football was born, because Harvard in 1873 decided it preferred its own "Boston game," on the order of rugby, to soccer.

That year Harvard declined to attend a meeting at which Columbia, Princeton, Rutgers and Yale were to form an intercollegiate soccer group. Had Harvard participated in that meeting, soccer might have become our great intercollegiate and professional sport.

It is played with such fervor in some places today that soccer players have been killed on the field by spectators, spectators have killed each other and nations have severed diplomatic relations and gone to war.

Eight hundred million people are estimated to have watched a World Cup on television.

If soccer entrances — and even maddens — such disparate peoples as Britons and Latvians, Brazilians and Germans, Africans and Afrikaners, it must be a sport that can hold the attention of Americans. Or can it? The jury is still out, but the progress has been encouraging in some cities like Seattle where the average attendance is 23,000.

If those who control this burgeoning game in the U.S. have good sense and the enlightened self-interest to discipline themselves and to take a decent posture toward soccer, the future is bright.

It will take time. It is true that not many Americans know the difference between an inside-of-the-thigh trap and a volley kick, but not many are so knowledgeable about baseball or football as they pretend to be in the bars after a game.

Soccer is like vodka was 15 years ago. The public is going to have to be educated to it. When the sport takes over, the fun really begins.

Soccer is. . .well, fanaticism.

Try it tonight in Soldier Field. You just might like it. The Sting deserves support.

Anyway, what have the Cubs, White Sox, Bears, Bulls and Black Hawks done for you lately?

The natural

DiMaggio ages gracefully at 62

by IRA BERKOW

An entire generation is growing to middle age who knows Joe Dimaggio only as the kindly, long-faced, gray-haired man on a coffee-machine television commercial, or as the subject in the quizzical line of the hit song, "Mrs. Robinson."

The line went, "Where have you gone, Joe DiMaggio, a nation turns its lonely eyes to you." The line was a refrain a few years ago, before DeMaggio began making commercials.

"I've never been able to figure out," said Joe DiMaggio, "what the song means."

Neither has Paul Simon, who wrote it. "It means anything you want it to," Simon has said. "My style is to write phonetically and with free association, and very often it comes out all right. But as soon as I said the line, I said to myself that's a great line, that line touches me. It has a nice touch of nostalgia to it . . . It could be interpreted many ways.

"It has something to do with heroes. People who are all good and no bad in them at all. That's the way I always saw Joe DiMaggio."

Joe DiMaggio played for the New York Yankees from 1936 through 1951. For the Major League Baseball Centennial in 1969, in a poll of players and executives, he was named "The Greatest Living Baseball Player." His record of hitting safely in 56 straight games was chosen "The Greatest Individual Achievement in Baseball History."

DiMaggio, who now lives in San Francisco, was back at Yankee Stadium recently for an Old Timers Day game. He was given the choicest locker, the one closest to the shower room, a locker he inherited from Babe Ruth and passed on to Mickey Mantle. It says "Hunter" over it now, for Catfish Hunter.

DiMaggio is 62 years old now, and aging as gracefully as he played centerfield. He is meticulous. His hair is silvery, thinning, but each strand appears to have been combed back separately and indulgently. His gentle hazel eyes are a little slanty, a little rheumy, still a little shy. He had removed his blue sport jacket and blue slacks and white shirt with the Monogram "JDM" and black loafers. He began pulling on the famous pinstriped Yankee uniform, with his number, 5. Lastly, he worked his feet into the spiked shoes, the kind of shoes he wore for so many years. "Oh god," he said, "these hurt like hell."

What does he do now? he was asked.

"Play golf, do those commercials, take it easy," he said. "And travel. I love that. My favorite place? Scandinavia. I like the relaxed style of life. I never had dreams to do anything else after baseball. Lawyer? Businessman? No, I've never been very bookish."

It was mentioned that he has the reputation for being the perfect, natural ballplayer, that it was said, and generally believed, that he never made a difficult catch, which is to say that he never made a catch look difficult.

"That's all nonsense," he said. "I remember one game I made two errors on one play. I came back to the bench and someone asked if I'd want a war helmet to wear the next inning.

"As for being a natural, well, nobody ever worked harder than I did. In spring training I'd have Earle Coombs hit me grounders in the outfield, and hit balls over my head, and to my right and to my left.

And effortless. Let me tell you, every time I take a step today I am reminded of my baseball career. My body aches all over from all that it took to play this game. I can hardly toss a ball today from here to there."

DiMaggio would not be playing in the game today. He stopped playing Old-Timers games a few years ago. He says he can't swing the bat anymore, though just a handful of years ago some of the young players would delight in watching the old master. "You could always count on Joe to hit a frozen rope," said Reggie Jackson.

He does show up at several Old-Timers games around the country. He is usually the last to be announced and the cheers are usually the most enthusiastic for him. One is reminded of a remark by Leonard Bernstein, the composer and conductor. He once said that applause is a necessity for the artist. It goes in one ear and quickly out the other. But the ear must be constantly fed.

There is a story told of when Marilyn Monroe, then married to DiMaggio, returned from a tour of Korea in 1953 where she entertained the U.S. troops.

Breathless with excitement, she said, "Joe, you've never heard such cheering."

And Joe said softly, "Yes I have."

White Sox stop Boston on Brett's seventh win

Ken Brett earned his seventh victory of the year against eight losses Thursday night as the Chicago White Sox beat Boston, 4-2, ending the teams' regular-season play tied at six wins apiece.

Brett went the distance, striking out seven and walking three.

It was Music Night at Sox Park and the home team hit the right notes in the very first inning when Jorge Orta singled and stole second. A moment later, Bill Stein ripped a double to the wall in left as Orta jogged across the plate.

The Sox made it 2-0 in the second on a walk to Jerry Hairston, a sacrifice, and Jack Brohamer's RBI single.

Boston scored a tainted run off Brett in the third. No. 9 hitter Butch Hobson belted a long flyball to right-center that Chet Lemon dropped after a lengthy chase. Hobson, who got credit for a triple, came to the plate on a ground out by Rick Burleson.

Wildness got Red Sox starter Rick Wise in trouble again in the fourth when he walked Brian Downing leading off. Hairston punched a single to center, sending Downing to second, and Bucky Dent followed with his second sacrifice. Brohamer picked up another RBI with a sacrificed fly to right.

Brett worked his way out of a bases-loaded jam which he brought on with his own wildness in the fifth. After retiring the first two Boston batters, the Sox lefty walked Burleson, gave up a single to Doug Griffin and walked Fred Lynn. But Brett forced Carl Yastrzemski to bounce out to Brohamer.

SURVEYING THE scene at the Lake Forest training camp is Chicago Bears' Coach Jack Pardee. The Bears own three straight exhibition victories and entertain the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night in Soldier Field.

Lakers job to West

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Less than two years after he tearfully announced his retirement as a player, former NBA superstar Jerry West became the fifth head coach in the 16-year history of the Los Angeles Lakers Thursday, replacing Bill Sharman, who will remain with the club as general manager Pete Newell's assistant.

In accepting Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke's multi-year contract offer, the 38-year-old West — who virtually has done nothing but play golf the past two years — settled his $6-million law suit filed against Cooke last Oct. 7.

The suit stemmed from an oral agreement West said he had with Cooke for a lifetime job of some sort with the Lakers. After West's unexpected retirement, however, Cooke assertedly refused to honor the agreement.

Terms of West's contract as the new Laker coach were not disclosed and the flamboyant Cooke was not in attendance at the news conference where the signing of West was announced. It was in the same Forum room in which West announced on Oct. 3, 1974 that he would not play another season because "the older you get, the harder it is."

"My differences with Mr. Cooke have been settled," West said when asked if he had dismissed his litigation. "We have no differences now."

Sharman, who coached the Lakers to their only NBA championship in 1972, failed to get Los Angeles into the playoffs the past two seasons.

Directly after West's retirment as a player, the Lakers finished last in the five-team Pacific Division with a 30-52 record in 1975.

Despite the addition of 7-2 superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, the Lakers missed the playoffs again last season with a 40-42 record, finishing behind Golden State, Seattle, and Phoenix.

"Needless to say I'm extremely happy," said the emotional West whose eyes were misty. "I think it's every professional basketball player's dream to come back and become the head coach of his former team. That was mine."

A 13-time All Star, West was the Most Valuable Player in the 1972 All Star game. While he never won the NBA's MVP award, he finished runner-up in the voting three times. He earned the nickname "Mr. Clutch" for his brilliant last minute performances, stealing the ball and scoring in close games. He is the NBA's all-time leading playoff scorer with 4,457 points, a 29.1 average, second only to Abdul-Jabbar's 29.7.

He finished his NBA career as the league's third all-time regular season scorer with 25,192 points. His 27.0 regular season scoring average is the fifth highest in the league's history.

Wei wins twice in San Diego meet

SAN DIEGO — Arlington High School tennis star Paul Wei defeated previously unbeaten Mark Nicholson of Sacramento, Cal., 6-3, 3-6, 6-2, in the fourth day of the National City Boys Playoffs Thursday as Chicago moved into third place in the team standings.

Wei, who owns a 3-1 record in singles matches here, teamed up with Kreg Yingst of Libertyville to stop Karl and Kurt Richter, Sacremento, 6-4, 6-3, in their doubles match. Wei and Yingst are undefeated in three doubles matches.

Wei, set to begin his senior year at Arlington, is playing No. 1 singles for the Chicago team, which also boasts such area standouts as Bob Frei and Kerry Westberg.

Chicago, with 30 points, is two behind San Diego and seven in back of first-place Atlanta. Wei and his teammates will meet Atlanta in the final match Saturday.

Massengale leads Hartford Open

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. — Rik Massengale, a winner just once in seven years on the PGA tour, shot a six-under-par 65 to grab the first round lead Thursday in the $210,000 Greater Hartford Open.

Massengale, a 29-year-old Texan, missed only one green in building a two-stroke lead on the field, which is seeking a $42,000 top prize, highest in the tournament's 25-year history.

"That's the closest I've hit my wedge in some time," he said after blistering the back nine with five of his birdies. "And on this course, you sure do use your wedge a lot."

A formidable quartet of J. C. Snead, Art Wall Jr., Chi Chi Rodriguez and Billy Casper were at 67, two shots behind Massengale.

Ten players were grouped at 68, including gallery favorites Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino and 64-year-old Sam Snead, uncle of J. C.

While many players matched or bettered par, the 6,598-yard Wethersfield Country Club course did not take the beating it usually does. Stiff winds early in the day accounted for the relatively high scores.

Dave Stockton, who won the tourney in 1974 with a 16 under par total and who is coming off an impressive win in the PGA Championship, shot 76. Defending champ Don Bies came in with a one-over 72.

Spaniards beat U.S. in team golf

GLENEAGLES, Scotland — Spanish teenager Severiano Ballesteros scored a convincing 3 and 1 victory over British Open champion Johnny Miller Thursday in leading Spain to a 4-0 shut out of the top-rated United States quartet in the $45,000 Double Diamond World team match play golf classic.

The 19-year-old Ballesteros, outgunned by the Californian in the last round of the British championship, said, "If Miller had played like that in the Open he would have lost."

The Spaniards spanked the favored Americans in their Group Two clash, with Manuel Pinero defeating 1975 U. S. champion Lou Graham, 2 and 1, Salvador Balbuena downing Dave Hill by one hole and Antonio Garrido beating Mark Hayes by the same margin.

Miller, playing for the first time since injuring his hand in a motorcycle accident three weeks ago and suffering from jet lag after arriving Wednesday morning, was four over par before he plunged to defeat by driving into the bushes at the 17th hole.

But the 29-year-old Californian refused to write off his team's chances despite the whitewash.

"One defeat doesn't make the Americans the underdogs for the rest of the week," he commented. "But these Spaniards are good and had local knowledge of the course we didn't posses ."

Team Tennis attendance up in '76

NEW YORK — World Team Tennis announced Thursday the league attendance reached a record 883,144 spectators for the recently completed season, representing a 32 per cent increase over 1975.

The figures average out to 4,033 fans a game for the 219 matches.

Last season, the league drew 503,858 for 165 playing dates, an average of 3,053.

WTT president Larry King said the league "was overwhelmed" by the increased tennis interest. He said, "We knew we were going to grow, but I don't think we anticipated how fast we would move. Our growth this year exceeded our most optimistic forecasts. In addition, the teams are up nearly 80 per cent in gross dollars."

The attendance figures do not include the crowd of 12,581 that watched the nationally televised East-West All Star match from Oakland, or the current playoff matches.

A one-night attendance record was set on July 8 when 13,492 people watched Phoenix, with Chris Evert, play Pittsburgh, with Evonne Goolagong.

Tennis entries closed in men's doubles

Entries are closed in the men's doubles, anyage division of the Paddock Tennis Tournament, according to tourney director Mel Timmons. It was the second division to be closed. The first division to fill up was the boys 15-and-under singles and doubles.

The deadline for signing up is Saturday. Application forms can be obtained at the Herald's offices, 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights. The entry fee is $2 for adults and $1 for children.

The tourney is scheduled for Sept. 4-6.

Clinic ahead for junior football coaches

A football clinic for all area coaches involved in junior football programs will be held at Buffalo Grove High School Aug. 23-24 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The first meeting will be held in the school's gym.

For further information, contact Grant Blaney, clinic manager, at 394-0687.

Penn State grid coach more concerned with love

NEW YORK, (UPI) — On Sunday, Joe Paterno will gather his Penn State players around him in the locker room, greet them for the new season and talk to them for maybe an hour.

It won't be one of those rah-rah speeches. That isn't Joe Paterno's style.

More likely he'll start by saying the next few weeks won't be easy, they'll be rough, but that he and his assistant coaches will try to judge everyone fairly and underestimate no one. Joe Paterno will tell his players they must have people's respect not only as athletes but as human beings, and that two of the most important elements it takes for a good football team are camaraderie and love.

Milton Richman

That's right, l-o-v-e. The same thing the late Vince Lombardi talked about whenever they'd ask him what was it that made his Green Bay teams so special.

Where Paterno differs from Lombardi is in his approach to winning. It isn't the last word with Paterno, although he wants to win, too. Some doubt exists as to whether Lombardi originated the phrase "winning is everything" but there's no doubt he firmly believed in it. Paterno does not. At least not to that degree.

"I can't buy that," he says. "It can't be everything."

More important than winning to Paterno is the effort his players make, and maybe that strikes you as nothing more than plain old hair-splitting, but actually it isn't. Joe Paterno simply is saying that nothing, not even victory itself, is more gratifying than the pure, clean effort and excitement of trying to achieve it, and on that count you've got to go along with him 100 per cent.

"The attempt to win is everything," he says. "I don't say winning doesn't mean anything. I'd feel I wasn't doing my job if I don't work very hard and try to win. But if we don't win, I don't feel that means we've been a complete failure."

Joe Paterno doesn't have a lot to worry about from that standpoint. He's starting his 11th year at Penn State and no major college head coach at his present job a minimum of five years has a better won-and-lost record than he has. Joe Paterno has a better record than anybody you name, Frank Kush, Bo Schembechler, Bear Bryant, Woody Hayes, Darrell Royal or anybody else.

His percentage of 836 based on 94 victories, 18 losses and one tie in 10 years at Penn State and to give you an idea of how good it is, the highest percentage ever compiled by anybody was the .881 posted in 13 years at Notre Dame by the late Knute Rockne, who some still consider the greatest coach ever.

If you ask Joe Paterno how much his own won-lost record counts with him, he says not very much, and the way he says you know he's not trying to be blase or anything like that, he's only saying what he feels.

"In my business," he says, "You're only as good as your last game. You can't sit back and talk about what has gone before. If you start looking back, you're in trouble. I'm more concerned with what I'm going to do in the next 10 years than what I did in the last 10."

Wouldn't he care to surpass Knute Rockne's record some day. Leave the game when he's all finished with the best record of any college coach who had ever been in it?

"That would be something," agrees Paterno, "but it isn't the most important thing. I really feel my first responsibility is to my family. I have five children, all under 13 and God has been good to us. They are all fine, healthy children.

"All of them don't follow football that closely. Some go to the games; some don't. One of my boys, Joseph, is very interested. The oldest boy David, is more interested in soccer. If I can come out of all this a good father and a decent coach, that will mean more to me than anything else."

One o fthe things about Joe Paterno that takes him out of the common mold of most coaches; is his readiness to acknowledge there is another world outside college football. He maintains a lively interest in what's going on everywhere, not only in sports. Joe Paterno even can laugh at himself more easily than most coaches.

He likes to tell a story of an episode a few years ago involving two of his players, Bruce Bannon, a senior and All-American defensive end, and Greg Murphy, a sophomore from Brooklyn playing behind Bannon. The New England Patriots of the National Football League were after Paterno at the time; dangling a six-figure offer and hoping to sweet talk him into coming with them.

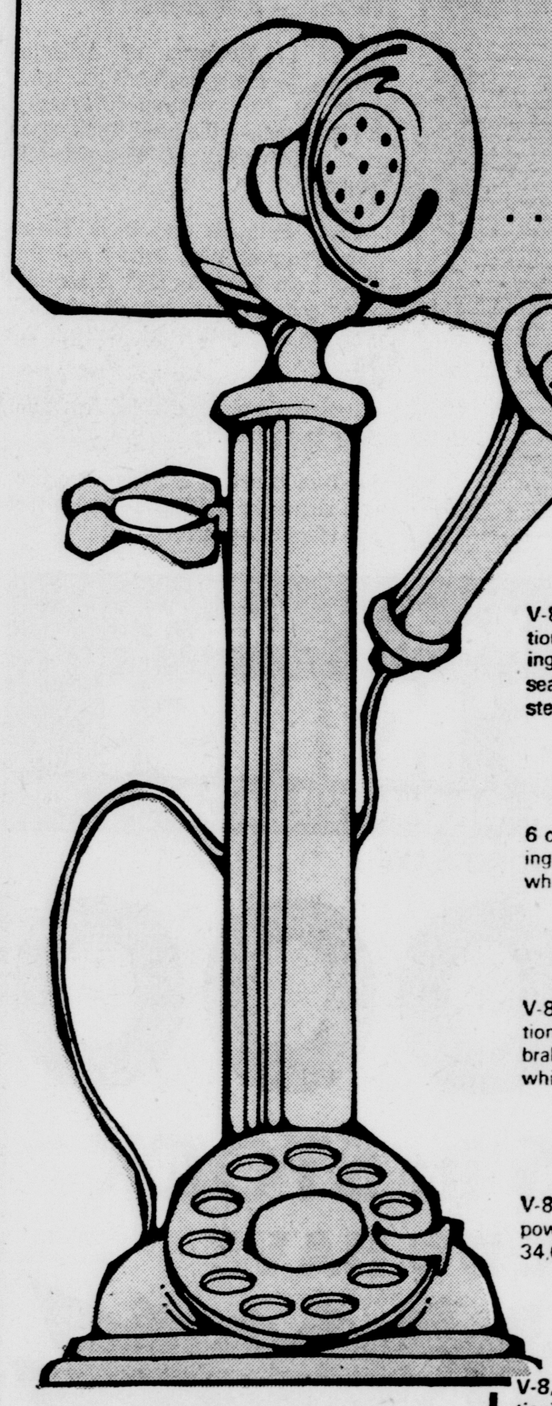

"Someone asked Murph whether he thought I'd leave," Joe Paterno says, laughing, "and he said, 'I don't care what Coach Paterno does, I'm just glad Bruce Bannon is leaving.' "

For complete details call 414-862-9136. Dug Out Park will also accept entry fees mailed to Dug Out Park, Rt. 1 Box 321, Trevor, Wis. 53179.

One wins, one rolls

Two area stock car racers had varying degrees of fortune recently.

Jack Klein of Rolling Meadows won his heat at the Rockford Speedway but Randy Mitchell of Elk Grove, driving at Waukegan Speedway, flipped his car over when he was clipped by another car and careened into the back stretch wall. He was not injured.

Knights make prep list

Five Prospect High School track athletes have been named to the Prep Track & Field "Athletes of the Year" squad for 1976.

The Knights named were D. James Wright, Mark Robert Smith, Nancy Jane Callard, Bryan Lee Granzin and Bradley Donald Millar.

Sheridan offers distaff chase at Arlington Park

Mrs. Gertrude Leviton's Gala Lil, undisputed queen of the Maryland thoroughbred circuit, has been assigned high weight of 124 pounds by racing secretary and handicapper Guy C. Klank for Saturday's $100,000 added Sheridan Handicap at Arlington Park.

Ken Opstein's Summertime Promise, one of North America's leading four-year-old fillies, is next on the roster of 23 fillies and mares with 120 pounds, followed by G. M. Holtsinger's Dancers Countess, who was given 119 pounds for the mile and one-quarter clash.

The historic Sheridan Handicap, which is up for its fifty-second running this year, ranks as the distaff championship of the Midwest. It will be contested for members of turfdom's fairer sex for the first time in history.

Other top distaffers sparking the Sheridan Handicap list are Meryl Ann Tanz's Our First Delight, 117 pounds, Alice H. Chandler's Nicosia, 115 pounds, Albert M. Stall's Regal Rumor, 115 pounds, Dozac Stable's Roger's Choice, 115 pounds, and Cragwood Stable's Javamine, 113.

Gala Lil surpassed the $200,000 plateau in career earnings this season by virtue of capturing eight of 12 outings (four of them in stakes) for over $106,000 in purse money.

The Bernard P. Bond trained four-year-old is fresh from victory in Pimlico's $25,000 added Lady Baltimore Handicap, in which she conceded from nine to 22 pounds to her rivals in the 1-1/16 miles attraction.

Earlier in 1976, Gala Lil won the Geisha Handicap, Valley Forge Handicap, and the Haddonfield Handicap. Last season the little miss took down honors in the Dogwood Stakes and All Brandy Handicap to ignite a banner $108,000 three-year-old campaign.

Summertime Promise, who sports earnings of over $149,000 in 1976, has won Hawthorne's Indian Maid Handicap and the Apple Blossom Handicap at Oaklawn Park.

Crimson King Farm's T.V. Vixen, a triple stakes heroine at the meeting, was originally nominated to the Sheridan, but was later declared by trainer Peter Salmen Jr.

Volleyball marathon for MS ends today

A vollyeball marathon to raise money for muscular dystrophy is being held this week in Bensenville.

The marathon began on Tuesday at 4 p.m. and will conclude this afternoon at 4:00 at Veteran's Park, located at 161 North Church.

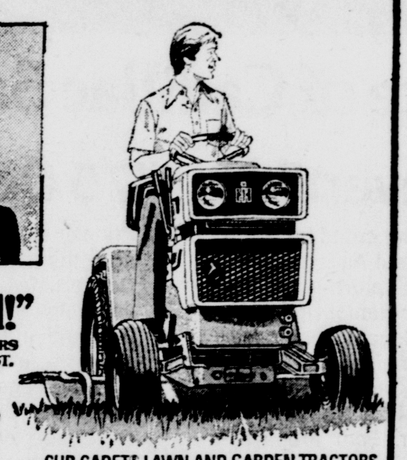

Each volunteer received pledges for every hour of competition. According to a spokesperson of the event, the marathon is closing in on its goal of $7,000.

If people are interested in helping these athletes reach their goal, they can send contributions to the Muscular Dystrophy Assn., c/o Bank of Wheaton, 111 N. Hale, Wheaton, Ill. 60187.

'Adequate' Bears fail to excite some readers

The worst thing the Chicago Bears could have done to their fans was win their first three exhibition games. It's actually a lot worse than if they had lost them all, because now the fans are going to be expecting great things from a team that can't deliver.

Face the facts. This year's Bear team is the same as last year's team that went nowhere. The personnel is the same, the coach is the same, the general manager is the same. The quarterback problem hasn't really changed any, and it may be even worse. If the Bears expect to survive on the arm of Bob Avellini they're in for a rude awakening. Walter Payton is too injury-prone to be able to help the team consistently. And the defense is sadly overrated.

The simple fact is that the Bears are an adequate team that could be lucky to break even this year, but they are not a contender and their fans should not get their hopes up.

T. J. Propst
Hoffman Estates

ALL THAT GLITTERS

Dear editor:

The preseason buildup for the Bears is a curious thing indeed. Optimism is always a commendable asset for the deprived, especially Chicago sports fans, and Bear loyalists are plenty deprived. But years and years of broken promises should warn the fans that what glitters in the late summer is not very often gold in the late autumn.

John Stayce
Des Plaines

BEARS WILL SURPRISE

Sports editor:

The Chicago Bears will play an exciting brand of football this year and, I predict, they will be in the playoff fight right to the end. They might even land a berth. They will surprise a lot of people since nobody expects them to win. People are too accustomed to losers in this town.

Ed Miller

GOOD WINTER AHEAD

Fans Forum:

Chicago sports fans can look forward to an exciting winter of hockey, basketball and football. The signing of big-name stars like Bobby Orr and Artis Gilmore should make the Hawks and Bulls a lot more interesting, if not better teams, which is always questionable. And the Bears have shown in pre-season that they could be an exciting, competitive team.

Like everybody else, I have been getting tired of the summer and the Cubs and Sox. Those teams are so bad it's embarrassing. I can't wait until winter.

Tom O'Shea

BRING ON THE KIDS

Dear Fans Forum:

It won't be long before the high school sports season begins and for our family that's the best news yet. We're sick of the professionals and there's something very welcome about those Friday Nights when the youngsters play. I guess there's a need for professional sports for some people, but we can do without them entirely.

Golf tourney to benefit St. Jude

The St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital will benefit from the First Annual Celebrity Golf Tournament to be held Monday, Aug. 23 in Mission Hills Country Club in Northbrook.

In addition to golf there will be swimming and tennis, a fashion show by Lord & Taylor at Hawthorn, Geddes Models, the Celebrity Dinner and more.

Proceeds from the tournament will be used for operating the research hospital, the only one solely for basic and clinical research in catastrophic childhood diseases where more than 7,000 children have been treated without charge.

The cost of the tournament is $150 including all the extra activities and a dinner for two. The Celebrity Dinner is only $75.

Persons interested in participating or learning more should contact the tournament sponsor, River Grove State Bank at 8325 W. Belmont Ave. in River Grove or make out a check to them for the tournament.

Striker hosts state blind bowling tourney

The Illinois State Blind Bowling Tournament will be hosted by Striker Lanes in Buffalo Grove Saturday, Aug. 21 at 10 a.m.

The tournament is open to all accredited blind bowling leagues and will draw competitors from Alton, Peoria, Rockford and Chicago.

The tournament will run all day and the public is invited free of charge.

Two crafts

Stocks...and more stocks for Tom Frank

Jim Murray

There are two classic ways to become a race driver.

You can buy a Model A or other late vintage car, set it up yourself in a homemade workshop, modify it, tinker with it, set it on a track, and learn your craft slowly and painstakingly till, one day, you climb up through the Formulas and find yourself on the grid at Monte Carlo or in the Firecracker 500.

Or, you can go to the president of the firm, sell him on the idea that road racing is good for the factory image or promotion and get him to outfit you with a team, a passel of cars, mechanics and spare parts. Then you can go to the Bob Bondurant high performance driving school and learn to control your vehicle and yourself in a spinning race car — and you're Barney Oldfield.

Tom Frank chose the latter path to the checkered flag. He had no difficulty convincing the president. Tom Frank is the president.

He is the president, chairman of the board, and largest individual stockholder of a motor home manufacturing business grossing $30 million a year, employing a thousand people, and turning out recreational vehicles at the rate of 3,000 a year, selling from $52,000 per unit down to $13,500.

Usually, you would expect a tycoon like this to be driving a Rolls Royce with a telephone on the seat. If he had a yen for the sporting life, it would be a yacht at the marina. The cockpit of a flaming race car is not your average businessman's specialty. His idea of a disaster is three putts. Two hundred miles an hour in a company jet, perhaps. But in the driver's seat of a Porsche?

From Monday to Thursday, Thomas E. Frank is in a pinstripe and vested suit with muted tie and cuff links in the board room of Executive Industries Inc. From Friday to Sunday, he's in a flame proof jumpsuit, wearing a helmet, goggles and driving gloves. He's a weekend chauffeur.

He doesn't care what over-the-counter stocks are doing, or accounts receivable or inventory. He just wants to know how his Hornet compact is doing. He doesn't want to beat out a bunch of other corporate giants, he wants to beat out another bunch of GT drivers. He'd probably rather be Johnny Rutherford than H. L. Hunt.

Frank is an ex-Big 10 football player (Northwestern) who came out of a scrimmage once with a brace on his knee and decided it was easier to flank American businessmen than the Notre Dame backfield. After a stint with Union Carbide, the building of an instant coffee device for factory or office machines and a Volkswagen distributorship in 14 states, Tom Frank found himself retired at age 31.

His coffee factory in Iowa was 20 miles from a Winnebago factory and Frank was fascinated by the "streams of motor homes" he saw passing the highway below his window. He sought out the manufacturer. Was the mobile home business a good one to get into? "Yes, but don't do it in Iowa. Do it somewhere where it doesn't snow," he was told.

Frank took the hint, and opened his business in Orange County, where there was plenty of outdoors. When the energy crisis stampeded two backers into selling out control, the ex-football player went into his goal-line stand and raised $6 million in four days to save his position.

Frank, who drove in the Goodrich Radial Challenge 100 for compact cars and the Camel GT 100 for touring cars at Ontario in the International Motorsports Spectacular of Racing, got into a racing car at an age — 36 — when most executives are getting into Maalox, or dominoes.

He is probably the only guy in the game who could make the Wall Street Journal as well as Road & Track if he wins.

Like, "Executive Industries was down today in light trading, but the chairman of the board was increasing his own net by $6,000 by leading 49 other, so to speak, stocks to the wire in a lively closing rally at the Ontario Motor Speedway."

Falcons' football practice to open

The Forest View High School football season will kick off with equipment distribution Friday night and Saturday morning following registration this week.

All players must have signed up by turning in their completed medical forms and parent permission slips in addition to purchasing insurance or signing a waiver.

Varsity equipment pickup will be Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. Sophomores will get their pads Saturday from 8 to 10 a.m. and freshmen from 10 to noon.

Practice for all levels will begin next Monday. Times will be announced.

CAR CORNER

with George Orth & Roger Nick

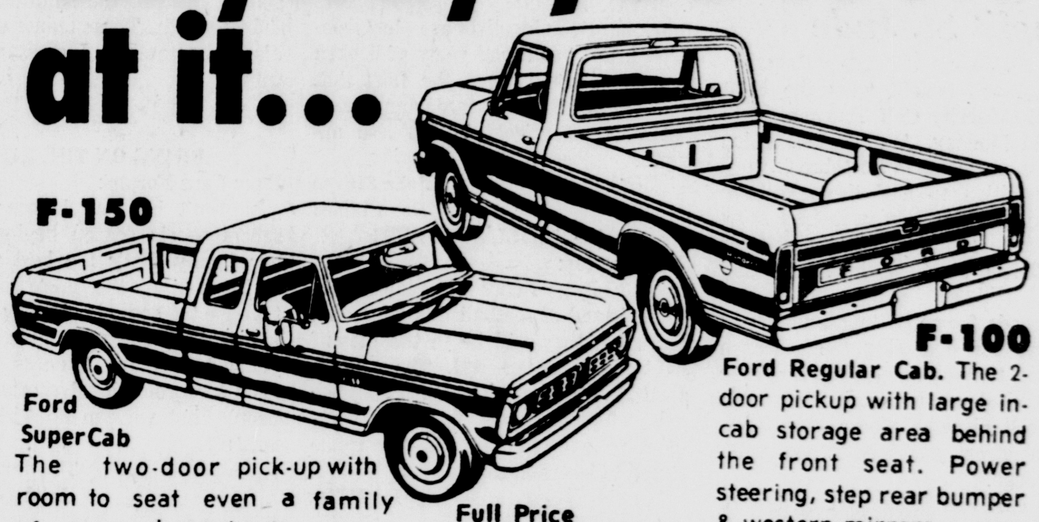

Be sure to consider these safety rules of the road when you travel in your car. Try to have someone accompany you to your car at night. This is especially true for women. A lone female walking through a deserted parking lot may be a victim of muggers. When driving, always watch for the unexpected. Never allow yourself to drive a car with a problem farther than your service station. Many service stations are operating on reduced hours, so plan gasing your car carefully.

A commitment to give personalized and dependable service to our customers has made RAY OLDSMOBILE, 510 Busse Hwy., Park Ridge, the largest retail OLDS dealer in Illinois! Regardless of where you bought your car, bring it to RAY OLDS for expert service. We have 20 factory-trained technicians on hand full time to give prompt, efficient service. Our service department is #1 in the area, and is backed by one of the most extensive parts departments in the state. Call us at 696-3200 to schedule your car for service. George Orth or Roger Nick, our service managers, will be on hand to help you.

Defending national champs lacking superstar talent; Sooner coach concerned

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Barry Switzer looked over his 1976 Oklahoma football team this week and expressed hope momentum gained en route to the national championship last season will offset a lack of established superstars.

Switzer greeted 124 candidates, including 37 lettermen, who put on game clothes for the photographers. Fall drills, in temperatures sure to be around 100, begin Thursday.

Switzer, now 32-1-1, said his fourth season as Sooner head coach is the most uncertain he has faced. He took over a 1973 team that had been socked with probation and took it to a 10-0-1 season that surprised nearly everyone but the coach and the team.

"In 1973 I really expected to win eight or nine ball games because of the talent we had," he said. "I had win some ball games."

Reasons included a young running back named Joe Washington, brothers Leroy and Dewey Selmon joining their older brother Lucious in the defensive line, defensive end Jimbo Elrod and receivers Tinker Owens and Billy Brooks.

"We knew they were going to be super," he said.

"Now, this year, the thing that really might give us an edge is what we've accomplished, the momentum from the last three years," Switzer said. "We won't have young players like the Selmons, no super running back like Joe.

"It has to be a year of more concern, more uncertainty," he said. "The fact that we've lost the edge in our talent."

Switzer said the Big Eight Conference is sure to be more balanced and tougher this year, with Nebraska a particularly fearsome foe. The Huskers have great talent, backed up by solid depth, he said.

Spring practice, because of 22 injuries, provided little opportunity to evaluate this year's team. Among veterans coming off injuries are fullbacks Jimmy Culbreath and George Cumby, offensive tackle Mike Vaughn, linebacker Bill Dalke, and defensive linemen Anthony Bryant, Phil Tabor and Richard Murray.

The position Switzer played, center, will receive a lot of attention.

"When you start out the offensive line, that's the position I worry about first, particularly with the kind of defenses we face, the nose-guard defense," he said.

"It's difficult to find a guy who can snap the ball and fires off at the same time, sort of like chewing gum and talking," he said. "He also has to be in a balanced stance, he doesn't have his feet staggered. Lots of guys, when you square them up, they are not so good."

Among those expected to receive a look are junior Joe Curtis, freshman Bill O'Gara and seniors Mike Spencer and Kevin Craig.

Detroit Lions 'better', hope to catch Vikings

by RICHARD L. SHOK

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Having convinced themselves they can beat the Minnesota Vikings on the field, the Detroit Lions hope this is the year they finally overtake them in the standings.

It was only two seasons ago that Detroit ended a 13-game losing streak against Minnesota — and proved it was no fluke by winning one of their two games last year.

But the Vikings were still ahead of the 7-7 Lions in the NFC Central Division standings. It was the seventh season in a row the two clubs have wound up 1-2 as the one-time "Black and Blue Division" has turned into the "Cut and Dried Division."

First place is the immediate goal for Coach Rick Forzano. After his Lions clinch the division title and an elusive playoff to think of the Super Bowl.

"You have to win your division and get in the playoffs before you can win the Super Bowl," Forzano says. "We have a long range goal, to win the Super Bowl; an intermediate range goal, winning the division; and a short range goal, winning the next game."

The veterans have seen just enough playing time to keep them sharp this summer and the Lions' record has suffered for it, but two factors indicate the club is stronger.

It is no longer inviting every other club's cuts in for a quick look and other teams are picking up Detroit's rejects.

"That my be a good observation," Forzano said, "But I don't know if it's valid at this stage of the game because other teams aren't claiming very many players either. There haven't been that many cuts yet.

"But I do know this: we are a better football team. The draft helped and we are a year older. A lot depends on how bad James Hunter's knee is. It's a big plus if he's healthy."

Hunter, from Grambling, was Detroit's top draft pick and is expected to play somewhere in the offensive backfield along with veteran Lem Barney, who now has 51 interceptions in his nine seasons, plus either Levi Johnson, Dick Jauron or Charlie West.

Detroit's biggest needs heading into the offseason were a crunching fullback and a flying wide receiver. They drafted Lawrence Grines, a 240-pound crusher from Wyoming, to play fullback if 1969 Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens can't return from a knee injury that caused him to miss all last season.

Gaines was Detroit's second first-round pick-the one it got from Los Angeles instead of Cullen Bryant for Ron Jessie.

The Lions went the trade route to get a top-class receiver to go with Larry Walton, hoping to come back from a knee injury, by sending their No. 1 choice in this year's draft to Buffalo for J. D. Hill.

And speaking of Hills, rookie David Hill from Texas A&I promises to give the Lions its first capable substitute at tight end since the club drafted Charlie Sanders in 1968.

Forzano is also high on Russ Bolinger, a 255-pound offensive tackle from Long Beach State picked in the third-round.

Two other draftees have potential but because of injury or players ahead of them, guard Ken Long of Purdue and middle linebacker, John Woodock of Hawaii will have trouble making the team.

Three players who will have no problem surviving will be Greg Landry, Bill Munson and Joe Reed, the trio of No. 1 quarterbacks. All have played first string for Detroit at one time or another during the past two seasons.

Landry and Munson are coming back from injuries and Forzano has given all three equal playing time in his efforts to let them determine which of them will start the regular season.

Detroit surprised by choosing Lynn Boden, a tackle from South Dakota State, as its No. 1 choice a year ago. The youngster got a chance to play because of injuries to others and showed All-Pro potential.

Altie Taylor became Detroit's all-time leading ground-gainer last year (4,297 yards on 1,165 rushes) and returns to lead Lion rushers again.

Tackle Herb Orvis led a Detroit defense season and it appears defense will determine how Detroit does again this season.

Johnson just needs luck

Once Bart Johnson was so disgusted with his pitching that he tried to become an outfielder.

Now, minus the high kick which took away his speed and control, and with new confidence plus a curve, he could become the pitching star of the Chicago White Sox.

Credit the change to Sox manager Paul Richards, as well as Johnson himself.

Early this season Johnson kicked so high in his delivery that his left foot sometimes touched his glove, obscured his vision of the plate and forced him to throw at less than full velocity. He had to rely on his fastball because he had no confidence that he could throw his fast curve for a strike.

That was when Richards took charge. "I had to let him find out he needed help," Richards said. "When I taught him to cut down on his kick, he listened.

The change was almost immediate.

" I figured I ha dto listen," Johnson said. "I was shortarming the ball because I didn't have time to bring my whole arm around. I have better balance with a short kick and my control is better because I can see the target longer."

His confidence in his curve grew too because of Richards. He had relied on his fastball as an "out" pitch and the batters expecting the pitch, teed off.

"He's got to throw the first curve for strikes," Richards said. "Or he isn't going to be pitching."

Johnson did, using the curve on as many as 60 per cent of his pitches in some games and getting it over for strikes wit hhis new view of the plate. The change also took away the confidence of rival batters that they'd see nothing but fastballs in tight situations.

The results produced a pitcher who said "I'm back to where I was in 1974," when he won 10 games and lost only four in less than half a season with the Sox.

"There's nothing wrong with my head," Johnson said. "When the manager told me what to do, I did it, because I could see that what I was doing wasn't working."

Johnson learned something else from Richards this season — the necessity to pitch with determination at all times.

This came after he had opened a game by striking out the side, making him so "overconfident" that he eased up and was hit hard in the next inning. "I said a few words to him," Richards said mildly, not an apt description of what he actually told the pitcher.

"He was mad," Johnson said. "He told me there was no way they should hit me like that." Johnson "messed his hair up after that, used his hard curse frequently and subsequently pitched a complete game and a shutout.

Johnson's performance this year is another square on his checkered baseball career. In 1971 he had an earned run average of 2.93, winning 12 games and saving 14, but in 1972, disgusted when his ERP soared to 9.22, he went off to Appleton, Wis. to play in the outfield.

A year later, returning to pitching, his season was ruined by a knee injury, but in 1974 he showed his potential. He missed the 1975 season with a back injury and was a question mark when this season began.

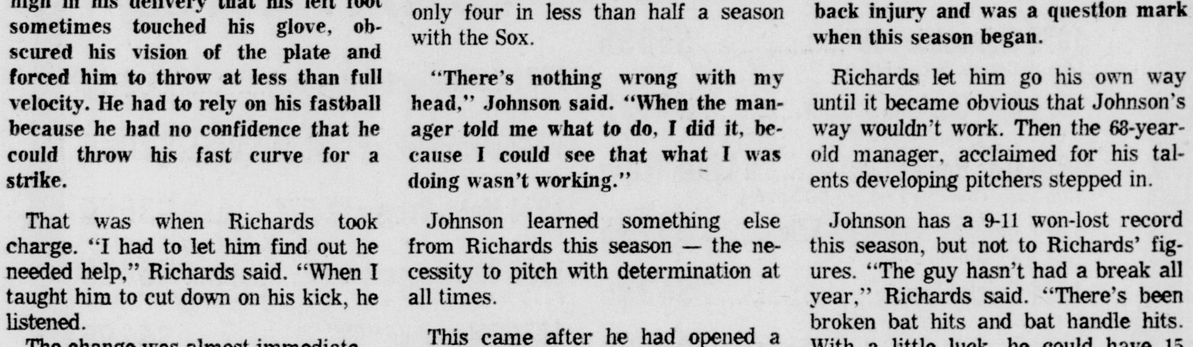

Richards let him go his own way until it became obvious that Johnson's way wouldn't work. Then the 68-year-old manager, acclaimed for his talents developing pitchers stepped in.

Johnson has a 9-11 won-lost record this season, but not to Richards' figures. "The guy hasn't had a break all year," Richards said. "There's been broken bat hits and bat handle hits. With a little luck, he could have 15 wins. They get those ground balls through the infield and that's been the story in most of his losing games.

"In all my years in baseball nobody ever has been willing to take a pitcher from me," Richards said. "I don't know why. But Bart Johnson could pitch for anybody."

The way Johnson's pitching now, the chances are nobody will get a chance to take him away from Richards. He'll stay with the White Sox.

Thompson seeks to form 'agricultural districts'

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson Thursday called for the establishment of special "agricultural districts" in Illinois to protect the state's prime farmland from development.

In a speech to the Illinois Agricultural Assn., Thompson said, "We must consciously endeavor to protect highly productive farmland from development, condemnation and other forms of destruction."

Thompson also said the real estate taxes "must not be allowed to become confiscatory." He said he favors assessing farmland adjacent to metropolitan areas on the basis of its agricultural use rather than its potential for residential development.

Thompson to be keynoter

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson will be keynote speaker Aug. 29 at the 12th District Republican Leadership Conference.

The conference also will include a panel discussion by U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th; U.S. Rep. Ed Derwinski, R-4th; and U.S. Rep. Henry Hyde, R-6th.

The conference will be at 1:30 p.m. at the Arlington Park Hilton in Arlington Heights.

3rd district appointments

Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman John Morrissey has been reappointed chairman of the third legislative district's Democratic committee by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, chairman of the Cook County Democratic Party.

Elk Grove Township committeeman William Rose was reappointed secretary of the committee.

The third district is comprised of all of Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships and parts of Palatine, Wheeling and Maine townships. The committee endorses candidates for the state Senate and House.

Sam Young opens office

U.S. Rep. Robert McClory, R-13, and U.S. Rep. Henry Hyde, R-6th, will be special guests Sunday at the grand opening of the central campaign headquarters for Sam Young, Republican candidate for Congress from the 10th District.

The grand opening will be from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Golfview Shopping Center, Morton Grove.

Harper to offer management class

Municipal and Governmental Management will be offered at Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

The program was developed with the guidance of an advisory committee composed of elected and appointed public officials from communities served by the college.

The program is designed to provide students with the knowledge, skills and values essential to managing government offices. It focuses on the "people" aspect of organization and management tasks of planning, budgeting and personnel administration.

For further information, call 397-0000, ext. 395 or 396. Fall classes begin Monday.

Myadec® capsules had no equal—until they made a tablet.

The Parke-Davis Myadec capsule contains a high-potency vitamin formula with minerals—9 important vitamins and 6 minerals, to be exact. And now this same high-potency vitamin product is also available in an easy-to-take tablet. That's one reason doctors and pharmacists are recommending Myadec tablets more than ever before. If you're active and on the go, stop in today and buy a supply of Myadec Tabs.
